Ten Small Children and Bus Driver Killed When Train Hits School Bus

Tragedy Occurs At New York Central Railroad Crossing—At Least Three Other Children Were Injured and Two of Them May Die—Fourth Big Bus Tragedy In Ohio Within Three Weeks.

Cleveland, Jan. 22 (AP).—Crash of a school bus and a speeding New York Central Railroad train cost the lives of ten small school children and the bus driver this morning at the Sheldon road crossing near Berea, Ohio, 15 miles from Cleveland. At least three other children were injured, and two of them may die.

The identified dead:

Don Taylor, driver.

William Waridson, 10; Rita Zelinski, 9; Vernon Davidson, 7; Evelyn Kattenbach, 7; Jacob Walters, 12; Juanita Walters, his sister, 9; Dorothy Zelinski, 11; Vincent Zelinski, 8, brother and sister of Rita.

William Pastorik, 10.

The identified injured:

Ethel Davidson, 10. She has a chance to live.

Twenty-three children were said to have been in the bus, and it was possible that there were more dead and injured than were accounted for shortly after the crash.

Eight students at Berea High School had left the bus, at their school just a few minutes before the vehicle was struck.

All of the children who were killed had been students in from the first to the sixth grades at the Brookpark school in a Cleveland suburb.

After the bodies of the dead and injured were picked up, the train crew, unable to do more, cleared the track of wreckage and resumed the trip. The train was number X-19, a mail run.

Hit Bus Squarely In The Middle.

The train, bound for Chicago, hit the bus squarely in the middle, nearly demolishing it, and scattering bodies and wreckage several hundred feet down the track. As quickly as the train could be stopped the crew and others aboard jumped off and rendered to the surviving children all possible aid.

Trucks and automobiles were commandeered and took the injured to Berea Hospital and the dead to two morgues.

Cause of the tragedy was undetermined. The crossing was considered dangerous because there were four tracks but the weather was bright and visibility was good.

The scene of the accident was in a sparsely settled section, however, which, with a long, straight, level right of way, gives the trains a chance to make high speed.

J. H. Beck, a section foreman, who was working on the tracks 1,000 feet west of the crossing, said he saw the bus stop just before it was driven in the path of the rushing locomotive.

A moment later, he said, he saw wreckage flying in the air and bodies hurled right and left. They were scattered 500 feet down the tracks.

Fourth Big Bus Tragedy.

The Berea crossing crash was the fourth big bus tragedy in Ohio within three weeks.

Just 19 days ago, seven school children of Burbank, Ohio, were killed at Shreve, Ohio, near Wooster, when a school bus, returning from a basketball game at night, was struck by a Pennsylvania train there. Several others were killed and more than 40 have been injured in other accidents.

Pathos was added to tragedy when mothers and fathers of the dead and injured children commenced to arrive. Cries of anguish were heard as mothers found their loved ones dead or learned they had been taken to hospitals seriously injured. Many of the fathers also were unable to restrain their grief.

Police of the surrounding section joined in the rescue work and the gathering together of the bodies.

According to Rudolph Ursprung, a conductor, of Berea, who was one of the first to arrive at the scene, there was a freight train passing east over the crossing as the bus approached. It was believed Taylor waited for the freight train to pass and then drove his bus in front of the fast mail which the freight train probably had hidden.

Among the dead were three children all of one family. They were Rita Zelinski, 9, her brother, Vincent, 6, and her sister, Dorothy, 11.

The engineer said, "I didn't see the bus until we hit it."

Train Master A. H. Hancock of Elyria had an opportunity to question Engineer Hand when the train later arrived at Elyria. Hancock said Hand told him the fireman was putting on coal just before the crash which prevented the fireman from seeing the bus.

Hand said the train was traveling 45 miles an hour. It consisted of one passenger coach and several mail and express cars.

Investigation Ordered.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 22 (AP).—State Utilities Commission today ordered two railroad inspectors to Berea to investigate the school bus train accident today.

The commission has no jurisdiction over school busses but will make its investigation from the railroad end. It has jurisdiction over the railroad.

The accident in which 11 persons were killed brought the death toll from bus accidents in Ohio to 20 and the injured to nearly 30, in less than a month.

Seven persons were killed and 11 injured January 3, when a Pennsylvania train demolished a Burbank High School bus at Shreve, Ohio, when the basketball team was returning from a game at a nearby school.

On the same day 10 persons were injured, two seriously in a collision between a jack rabbit bus and a truck at Bellevue.

Two persons were killed and several injured on January 2 when an Indianapolis-Columbus greyhound bus skidded from the highway at West Alexandria, near Eaton.

January 21, 1929, a Lake Shore electric struck and demolished a bus at a crossing near Bellevue killing 21 persons, as a result of which the State Utilities Commission directed all railroads crossing state highways to protect their lines with automatic flasher signals.

Rumored Doran Will Retire

When Enforcement Unit Is Transferred From the Treasury to the Judicial Department—Doran Silent on Report.

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP).—From the swirling cross-currents of the Capital's dry law controversy there emerged today a report that Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran will retire from the government service when the enforcement unit, of which he is the chief, is transferred from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

Doran, himself, declined to discuss the rumor and Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition, said the commissioner's resignation had not been submitted. But he added he had been told that several large concerns dealing in industrial alcohol had made extremely attractive offers for Doran's services.

Meanwhile, Congress went actively forward with its plans for enacting into law the recommendations of President Hoover and the Law Enforcement Commission for strengthening the administration of the anti-liquor statutes. A committee session today, with Secretary Mellon, Commissioner Doran and possibly Attorney General Mitchell as witnesses, is to be followed this week by several more, all dealing with the legislation requested by Mr. Hoover.

Today's meeting was called by Chairman Williamson of the Expenditures Committee in connection with his bill to transfer the prohibition unit to the Justice Department and ally it with the prosecuting agencies already in that branch of the government. The King Sub-Committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee will consider a similar measure this week.

Other committee sessions to take place within a few days will take up the proposed expansion of the powers of United States commissioners to enable them to try minor prohibition violations and thus relieve the present congestion in Federal courts.

The wets of the House intend to keep the prohibition question constantly before the public by discussing it on the floor at every opportunity—they expect shortly to set up an Executive Committee to conduct extra-official hearings on measures designed to modify the prohibition statutes.

The wet group read with interest today a letter from Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, asking what sort of a system they propose to substitute for prohibition. A series of questions was enumerated, and the whole designated a "challenge".

Schurman Sails For New York.

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 22 (AP).—The steamship George Washington sailed today for New York with Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American ambassador to Germany aboard. The ambassador telegraphed to President Von Hindenburg a final farewell, expressing his grateful appreciation of the latter's confidence and friendliness, and wishing the German people, "whom I've known and admired for five decades," all happiness and prosperity.

Day's Recess of Naval Conference A Formality Only

Delegations Take Advantage of Harmony Shown in Opening Session and Boldly Discuss Some of the Most Troublesome Problems Facing Them.

London, Jan. 22 (AP).—The five-power naval conference turned boldly and directly today to some of the most troublesome problems on its pathway to success.

The day's recess between yesterday's convening session and tomorrow's resumption "in committee" was only a formality. Far from marking time the delegations determined to profit by the harmony apparent at the opening session to solving their political and technical problems.

France, inevitably, was the center of the picture. It was from Paris one of the most trouble-laden pronouncements of the pre-conference exchanges emanated. It was Paris which was most concerned over the Italian demand for Franco-Italian naval parity. Today it was Andre Tardieu, French premier, who stood most conspicuously in the thick of the first earnest effort to steer the conference away from danger.

France Wants Proper Place.

Thus far at least the discussions have appeared to be largely advisory, without any attempt to reach conclusions. The French delegation continued to assure their colleagues of their willingness to make every reasonable concession to maintain harmony. They reasserted that certain primary French expectations must be met and that France must be accorded a proper place among the naval powers if any agreement reached is to be acceptable and lasting.

There was every indication that this viewpoint was listened to with deepest understanding by the other delegations at conferences held last night and which continued today. There was no evidence that an effort was being made at this stage even to dispute the French claims.

The other delegations, however, notably the British and American, were anxious that the French aspirations be completely and candidly developed at the very outset so they might be studied in the light of a full understanding.

An Important Dinner Party.

All participants declined to discuss or detail subjects discussed at a widely commented on dinner party last night which was attended by the heads of the American, British and French delegations. Ramsay MacDonald, Arthur Henderson, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, Dwight Morrow, Andre Tardieu and Aristide Briand were present. The meeting lasted well into the night. Afterwards those present would say only that they had a pleasant evening together discussing general problems.

There were indications previously that a long talk between Premier Tardieu and the Italian foreign minister, Dino Grandi, had resulted in complete lack of progress toward reconciling the disagreement in Italian and French viewpoints regarding naval parity. It was evident that this talk had to do with the general outline of national desires rather than an actual effort at agreement.

Today was given over entirely to informal consultations, reaching in many directions. The next general meeting of the delegates will be tomorrow at St. James's Palace, when the conference will resolve itself into a committee of the whole for private consideration of procedure.

"Big Five" Will Have Final Say

It was well understood, however, that a committee of 27 was too large to be expected to make much progress except along ways mapped out by smaller committees. General expectation was that when the ground had been prepared further by informal discussions, a "big five," composed of the heads of the delegations, would be constituted to take troublesome problems in hand.

Thus in the entire method of procedure the conference differs greatly from that at Washington in 1921, and the later meeting of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, at Geneva. The plan at London is to lay the diplomatic groundwork before embarking upon technical details of naval limitation, and to trust real decisions to the delegation heads, rather than to committees or expert advisers.

With reference to France it was the hope of the other delegations to smooth, as far as possible, the political features of the situation before going into naval figures. France's aspiration for a close-knit colonial empire, her hope that any results of the London conference would be linked with the disarmament work of the League of Nations, and her desire for a security understanding covering the Mediterranean area all were regarded in conference circles as questions for statesmen, rather than for admirals.

If an understanding is reached on these questions adjustment of naval strength to fit would be expected to follow easily.

Italy Wants Parity With France

It was likewise with Italy's desire for parity with France. This is a question the other powers feel the two nations should be able to settle between themselves after which applicable naval standards could be discussed. Nevertheless all delegations were interested in any problem which appeared to endanger the final accord.

Although no plans yet have been made for a British and American meeting with the Italians to develop their viewpoint, as that of the French was developed last night, it would cause no surprise if some such talk were arranged in the immediate future.

Thus far the Japanese delegates have taken no conspicuous part in the inter-delegation consultations, although they were received late yesterday by Mr. MacDonald. Japan's desire for a greater tonnage ratio than was accorded her at Washington remained momentarily in the background, although the delegates were prepared to consider it in due time.

Opera Singer Marries Former Po'keepsie Man

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 22 (AP).—Jane Carroll, mezzo soprano with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Ambrose Spencer M. Crummey, were on a honeymoon today after their marriage here in the town hall.

The couple motored to Greenwich unaccompanied and were married yesterday by a justice of the peace.

Miss Carroll, who gave her age as 30 years, was formerly Mrs. Helen Howard Charles in private life. Her first marriage was dissolved by divorce. She is the daughter of T. C. Howard of Reading, Pa., an efficiency expert on factory management. She was born in Louisville, Ky.

She made her debut with the Metropolitan Company November 6, 1928, singing a minor role in "Die Aegyptische Helena" with Marie Jeritza.

Mr. Crummey is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Safford Crummey of New York city and Goshen, N. Y. He gave his occupation as salesman. He was a student at the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, from 1920 to 1922. He was born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Governor Clinton Hotel Had Very Profitable Year

Directors Elected Tuesday at Annual Meeting—Adopt Resolutions To Raise Money For Erection and Equipment of New Addition—Statement of Finances.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Governor Clinton Hotel operated by the Kingston Community Hotel Corporation held Tuesday night at the hotel a statement of finances was submitted by W. Anderson Carl who is acting treasurer in the absence of Frank R. Fowley. This statement showed that 1929 was a very profitable one for the hotel corporation although the book profit at the close of the past year was not quite as much as the previous year.

The total income for the year was $231,179.88 while the total expense for the same period was $189,689.70 leaving a profit of $41,490.18. During 1928 the total income was $245,542.57 and the expenses $199,706.11 leaving a profit of $45,836.46. The revenue from rooms in 1928 was $124,296.41; from food $107,746.50 and other sources including rent $13,499.66. In 1929 the revenue from rooms was $120,696.34; from food $93,112.75 and rentals, etc., $17,370.79.

Directors Elected.

With a total of 3,264 shares of stock voting the following were elected directors for the ensuing year: Peter A. Black, Arthur J. Burns, William A. Carl, John H. Gregory, J. Leslie Kincaid, Edward Olmsted, Frank R. Powley, Arthur H. Wicks and Leslie O. Tirrell. Inspectors of election Max L. Reben and Eugene B. Carey.

Due to the absence of several of the directors from town the directors meeting for the election of officers for the year was postponed and will be held later this week.

Two resolutions to raise money to pay for the erection and equipment of the new 80 room addition which is now nearing completion and for the purpose of retiring outstanding notes were unanimously adopted. One resolution authorized the directors to execute a mortgage to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in an amount not to exceed $140,000 to be collateral to an additional loan to be made by said company not to exceed such amount and to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent payable as arranged by the board of directors. The second resolution authorized the executing of a mortgage running to the Kingston Trust Company in an amount not to exceed $160,000 to secure an issue of 7 per cent 15 year bonds.

Both of the above sums are to finance the new addition and to pay up personal notes which are now held by individuals. The issue of bonds will be in an amount only sufficient to pay for and equip the addition and in all probability the amount issued will be much less than the $160,000 authorized.

Out of a total of $160,000 already $118,000 has been subscribed of the 7 per cent General Mortgage Gold Bonds. Practically all of these subscriptions were received from present stockholders. In all 102 subscribers have applied for bonds. As applications have been made and accepted from others than stockholders in the past few weeks, it was decided by the directors to give the general public the opportunity to subscribe when it became apparent that the

Reminder of Old Time 'Hoss Cases' In County Court

Testimony in the Case of George Sherman Against Louis Basch Revives Memories of the Days When Horse Trading was a Leading Profession.

County court took on the atmosphere of days gone by Tuesday afternoon, when the case of George Sherman, horse fancier, against Louis Basch, dealer in horses and cattle, opened. The action was brought because the plaintiff contended that he was traded a poor horse, one that had been misrepresented to him, for a horse that he owned, and that the horse that was traded to him ran away and he never recovered it.

M. O. Auchmoody, attorney for the plaintiff, opened his case, explaining that Mr. Sherman had been a lover and trader of horses "ever since he was old enough to own one." At present the lawyer said, the plaintiff worked for the city and lived in East Kingston. Mr. Sherman, he said, owned a young roan at the time of the transaction, which was last May. He wanted to trade his horse for another and upon seeing the one Mr. Basch had, he thought that this horse was the one that he wanted. Mr. Basch, after argument, offered to allow Mr. Sherman $150 on his roan and to take a note for the remainder, $150. The plaintiff also owed some $17.50 on a previous transaction, which he agreed to add to the note, making the total $167.50.

The lawyer stated that the trade had taken place, but that when his client got the animal home he found that it was not broken to draw a wagon. Mr. Sherman had considerable difficulty in leading the horse into the barn and when he later tried to hitch the animal to a wagon, he was unable to do so, the horse running away. The action arose when Mr. Sherman went to get his old horse back and found that it had been sold. He asked the defendant to pay him for his horse or to give him one as good, but this the defendant refused to do, the plaintiff contended.

Denies He Was Drunk.

Mr. Sherman was the first to take the stand. He stated that he was 57 years old, had driven and owned horses ever since he was a young boy. His little roan, he said, was about eight or nine years old and was a good horse. He saw the horse he wanted at Mr. Basch's stable in May and began to deal with the defendant in an effort to trade horses. The deal was made after he had been assured that the younger horse was broken and a good horse. He stated that he took the defendant's word in the matter. He admitted that on the day of the trade he had been drinking, but denied that he was drunk. The trade made, he took the horse on a halter and returned to his home. He tried to get the horse into the barn but was unable to do so, and his wife assisted him by switching the horse as he tried to lead it into the stable. He then decided to try out his new horse and required the assistance of a neighbor in hitching it to a wagon. The horse at this time ran away and although he tried to find it he was unable to do so.

Both he and Mr. Basch tried to find the horse and failed to do so at that time. Later Mr. Basch, the plaintiff said, told him that he knew where the horse was, but refused to tell the plaintiff. He offered to do so for $40. The plaintiff then asked for his old horse back and was informed that it had been sold. Later he discovered that the new one had been sold also. He then demanded payment for his horse or another as good. A lame horse was offered him, he said, but he refused to take it. He was informed that his horse had been sold for $90 and the new one for $215.

Mr. Sherman stated that he knew the value of horses, and that the proper value for the roan was $150. He testified that after the other horse had run away he advertised in The Freeman for it, but that he never received any information concerning the animal. He denied that he had been told that the new horse required a set of blinders because it was young and frisky.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ewig, the plaintiff took the opposite position he had in direct examination. He denied that he was a judge of horses, although he had traded horses many times. He said that the note which was presented for $177.50 was wrong and that he had taken the defendant's word for the note and never read it. He also said that he had seen the horse act up before he traded, but supposed that the defendant's word was good in the matter and that the horse was as it was represented to him. The plaintiff said that he had taken the new horse from the defendant's place on Ann street to his own home and had not stopped for a drink on the way.

Mrs. Sherman Testifies.

Mrs. Sherman, called to the stand, testified that she knew her husband was going to trade horses. He came home the day of the trade and had been drinking. Later he came home with the little roan and tried to get it in the barn, but could not. She said she went up behind and struck it with a little switch and it went in. She assisted her husband in placing the harness on the horse in the stable, but the horse was so wild it threw off the harness and stamped on it. She called a neighbor to assist Mr. Sherman. She said Mr. Sherman had attempted to hitch the

Cooperative Clearance Sale On Thursday

Uptown Merchants Decide To Continue Sale One More Day Because of Storm—Large Crowd Out Today—Merchandise Will Again Be Offered Thursday at the Same Sale Prices.

Due to the threatening storm which undoubtedly kept many people at home the Uptown Merchants early today decided to continue their big Cooperative Clearance Sale one more day and to hold the sale Thursday as well as today.

Heavy clouds which hung over the vicinity all during Tuesday and early this morning began sending down a heavy snowfall undoubtedly kept many people from the surrounding countryside at home. Although the cooperative sale being conducted by the uptown merchants was a drawing card still many people residing at distant points were reluctant to start out on an allday shopping tour in the face of a threatening snowstorm.

In order to give these people an opportunity to participate in the sale it was decided to continue the sale Thursday in order that all may have an opportunity to take advantage of the sale.

Merchandise offered today will again be offered Thursday at the same sale prices.

In spite of the threatening weather there was a large crowd out today to take advantage of the big clearance sale at which winter and fall merchandise is being offered at drastic reductions to clear shelves for the new spring merchandise which will shortly be arriving.

Levee Breaks in Two States Affect 1,600 Families

Freezing Weather in Lower Mississippi Disrupts Rescue Operations for 250 Families in Big Lake Region.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 22 (AP).—Freezing weather enveloped the lower Mississippi valley today, disrupting rescue operations for about 250 families marooned in their homes in the Big Lake, Arkansas, region, and approximately as many more waterbound in high land camps.

Albert Evans, director of the Red Cross corps, said the rescue crews would try to give every family a chance to leave their homes. If they refused, as some have, the responsibility would be theirs, he added. It appeared unlikely that the flood waters would freeze sufficiently to allow the trapped families to walk on ice to safety. A coating of ice would make relief work extremely difficult.

More snow and sleet fell over southeastern Missouri and western Arkansas last night, and considerable suffering was reported among the marooned families. They had food but fuel was running low and it was bitter cold.

Reports said about 1,600 families had been affected in the two states by breaks on the St. Francis river and Big Lake.

Many of these were living on their own resources, others were with friends while still others were being kept in box-cars and tents and under care of the Red Cross.

The St. Francis and White were falling in their upper reaches but continued to rise in their lower basins. The White was above flood stage at Clarendon and had overflowed unprotected lands and forced two saw mills to suspend operations.

The same situation exists north through Poinsett, Craighead, Prairie and Mississippi counties and into Dunkin county, Missouri.

Refugees from the Marked Tree area began pouring into Jonesboro and Marked Tree yesterday. Many had driven their live stock to high ground.

The overflow has entered the villages of Holcom, Macey, Lunsford, Claunch, Gibson, White Oak, Horneaville, Senath and Brisbee.

Highway traffic was suspended in the entire area. A series of lakes, some seven miles wide and from 25 to 40 miles long, spread from southeast Missouri down the basin to near the mouths of the rivers. Bottoms of the lakes were either timberland, or farm lands along the streams.

In Greene county, Arkansas, where some more than 30,000 acres have been flooded, the cold weather checked a thaw.

LeGrand Gue Was Discharged

Judge Culloton After Hearing Testimony of Mrs. Schumann and Her Witnesses Discharged Gue—Other Police Court Cases.

LeGrand Gue of Bloomington, after a trial in police court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct was discharged by Judge Culloton. Gue had been arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Ethel E. Schumann of Eddyville, who testified this morning that while she was in the lobby of the Van Ross Hotel waiting for a bus, that Gue had used insulting language to her. To substantiate her charge she called Mason Van Demark and George Smith, both of whom were present at the time, as witnesses. Van Demark and Smith both testified that they had heard no conversation between Gue and Mrs. Schumann.

Mr. Gue asked the court if he could introduce character witnesses and was informed that it would not be necessary as from the evidence presented by the complainant and her witnesses he was going to discharge Gue, which he did.

Charles Carroll, who said he had no home, was picked up on a charge of loitering about the streets without visible means of support. He was sentenced to five days in jail, which was suspended provided he left town within an hour.

Harry Johnson and Charles Mason, two negroes, who have not worked in some time, were arrested for train riding on the West Shore Railroad. They said they were trying to get to New York to seek jobs. They were given ten days in jail, and the serving of the sentence was suspended provide they left town within the hour.

Metro Hausman of East Pierpont street, arrested for panhandling, pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned to Thursday.

Uses for Licorice

Licorice has not become a successful commercial crop in America. It grows wild over large areas in Spain, Italy, southern Russia, Asia Minor and southern Asia. This country, however, uses quantities of licorice. Ninety per cent of it finds its way into the tobacco industry, about 5 per cent into confectionery and about 5 per cent into medicine. Its principal medicinal use is to disguise the taste of acrid drugs.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Ormond Beach, Fla.—Another tip to duffers: John D. Rockefeller took a ride in an airplane. Then he shot his best golf of the season. The ride was the length of one fairway on the golf course and the plane taxied; it didn't fly at all; purposely so. The pilots, a Mr. and Mrs., received sundry shiny dimes.

Agua, Caliente—Here's an unguaranteed tip on the 50,000 pesos tournament: Harry Cooper, who has a fair score, got married yesterday about the same time that Marion Turple Lake, on her honeymoon, was smashing records with a 77 at Edgewater Park, Miss. Bobby Jones did not win the National Amateur Championship till he was a benedict. Shortly after his marriage Jess Sweetser won the British Amateur Championship.

Miami, Fla.—If home runs don't come fast enough when the season opens perhaps he should use his driver instead of a bat. In a tournament match Babe Ruth walloped a golf ball far enough to chase it far out of any baseball park—345 yards.

London—There was magnetism or something in a tree near the 18th green of the Waffrons Golf club in Surrey for the ball of T. F. Halliburton. In years of play he seldom failed to hit the tree. His will provides that his ashes shall be scattered on and under the nemesis of many an otherwise good score.

New York—John Arthur Johnson, whose playing of the bull fiddle in time past has attracted some attention, now leads a jazz orchestra in a Broadway chop suey establishment. He's the fellow, you know, who once was recognized as able to lick anybody in the world. He used to bull-fiddle in training camp for amusement.

Ottawa—Louis Dubue, 68, has just had his 30th child baptized. His first wife, who died 15 years ago, had 23 children, all of whom are alive. The second Mrs. Dubue is 38. Two of her children have died.

New York—Roland M. Smythe, 75, former member of the Stock Exchange and still active in handling securities, is unperturbed by an increase in telephone rates. He has no office phone; he does business by telegram and airmail. Forty years ago he decided that the telephone interfered too much with his work; he had it taken out.

Washington—Here's the low-down on the high and low of these United States to the further glory of the sunkissed tennis and football state: High, Mount Whitney, Cal., 16,496 feet; low, Death Valley, Cal., 276 feet below sea level. They are calculations of the geological survey.

New York—Now come authority and support for Al Smith's "radio". Nathan Haskell Dole, author and transplated Bostonian, says that the works of the ancient Roman poet Ovid prove that the a is short in the Latin "radius". And he adds: "There seems to be no more sense in raydio than there would be in changing rad-i-cal to raydical."

MINSTREL PRACTICE PLEASES RAPID HOSE OFFICERS

Rapid Hose Company held its semi-weekly minstrel rehearsal at its rooms on Hone street Monday night and officers of the company, who witnessed it, said that the show gave every indication that it will surpass the very successful one sponsored last year by the firemen. The next rehearsal will be held Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Eddie Barton, former professional performer, who coached last year's minstrel, has charge of putting on the show. He has listed many novelties on the program, which bears the names of seasoned performers and entertainers who will make their debut as well.

The minstrel will be staged in Kingston High School auditorium on Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 3 and 4. Tickets are now being sold by members of Rapid Hose Company.

5218 Happy People Give up Their Secret

They have found the way to Buoyant, Zestful Health, and the Joy that goes with it

JUST suppose you could get 5000 joyously happy people together in one big hall and could ask them what made them all so full of pep. Suppose, strangely enough, that all of them had discovered the same way to be happy. You would feel that here, if anywhere in the world, was the secret of how to get joy out of life.

This is just what has happened during the last few weeks. We knew there were millions of people who had found the secret of happiness in the same way, and we asked them in one or two small announcements in the magazines and newspapers to tell us their story. Letters came to us from practically all over the globe.

All of them said "The secret of happiness is health."

How to get this health? The way that all of these people had discovered was not some magic medicine, not some powerful drug, not some difficult course of training—but only a simple, harmless, natural method. It was to keep the body internally clean, sweeping its natural poisons away each day, regularly as clock work—by the use of Nujol.

These people had made a great discovery. They had found out that Nujol contains no drugs; that it is as tasteless and colorless as pure water; pleasant to take and forms no habit; that it cannot hurt you, no matter how much you take; that it is non-fattening; not absorbed by the body; that it is only the internal lubrication your body needs, just like any other machine.

It sounds like a fairy tale, doesn't it, to be well and happy so easily? Well, all you need to do to find out if these people have made a real discovery is to get a bottle of Nujol today at any drug store and take it for two weeks. It costs but a few cents and it makes you feel like a million dollars. The sure way to happiness is through health.

Reminder of Old Time 'Hoss Cases'

rse up to a wagon and the horse d run away and she never saw it gain. She and Mr. Sherman went see Basch, and he agreed to get em another horse after he recov- ed the roan. She never knew here he got the roun after it dis- peared. On one of the visits Mr. erman took a little buckskin rse from Basch and kept it over- ght, but returned it.

Mr. Sherman was recalled and ask- about the buckskin horse. He ad- itted taking it from Basch, but said had kept it overnight and return- it "because it would not eat".

The neighbor was called and stat- that the roan apparently was ecity frisky when an attempt as made to harness it. He id he found the roan was spirited d he left the barn before the at- mpt was made to hitch it to the agon.

Mr. Basch Called.

Mr. Basch was called by the plain- ff as his witness. He said he had lowed but $90 on the Sherman orse and had sold it as he had the an after he recovered it.

The plaintiff rested and Mr. Basch as called by the defense. He said e had placed a price of $250 on the orse when Mr. Sherman came to rade. He had allowed him $90 on e horse which Sherman owned and here was $17.50 due him on a for- er transaction with Sherman, so e made out a note for $177.50 and r. Sherman signed it. The amount the note was correct.

He testified he had told Mr. Sher- an to use blinds in driving the orse. Mr. Sherman had seen the orse driven to a wagon a week be- ore he purchased. At 1 o'clock in he morning following the day of the rade Mr. Sherman appeared at the asch home and said "did she come ack". Later Basch learned of the unaway. Next day he and Sherman rove out to Flatbush in search of he horse but all they found was bits f the broken harness. On the fol- owing Saturday Mr. Basch said he ad located the horse at Barclay eights in Saugerties and told Sher- an about it. Sherman said "you id not locate my horse, it is your orse" and consequently Basch said e went and got the horse. He paid Mr. Kelly $10 for its keep and $10 more to get the horse home.

A few days later Mr. and Mrs. Sherman called and bought a set of harness. At that time the roan was n the yard and they commented pon its being so gentle. Later Basch said he sold the roan to Mrs. A. V. Risley at Mt. Pleasant. It was old for $215.

Saul Shapiro of Newburgh, horse- dealer, was called and testified that e owned the roan and had rented it to a farmer to plow and cultivate grapes. Basch bought it from him. It was broken.

Charles Parker of Flatbush avenue alled. He said Mr. Sherman was at his house looking for a horse. At that time he said he had lost $400. He said Basch had told him not to hitch up the horse that night he re- ceived it but he had tried to and the horse ran away. He told Parker that Basch told him to use blinds.

Gentle, But Nervous.

Louis Riseley of Mt. Pleasant was called. He testified that his mother had bought the horse from Basch in June and he had used it in various kinds of work about the farm. It was well broken, gentle but nervous. He said he had never attempted to use it single before a light wagon as in these days of automobiles car- riages are not in use. He worked it double before a wagon and also in crope and chain harness. He said it was not wild, but nervous.

Testimony was closed and an ad- journment was taken until 9:30 o'clock this morning in order to sum up and dispose of the case.

Case Goes to Jury.

Most of the morning session of county court was occupied with the summations of the lawyers and the charge of Judge Joseph M. Fowler.

Both lawyers in their summations followed the testimony of their wit- ness, but Attorney Auchmoody, rep- resenting the plaintiff, took for his hypothesis in arriving at the amount to be recovered, the figures of the opposition.

The court charged the jury con- cerning the interested witness and the law on the subject, dwelling at length upon the two sets of figures offered by sides involved and the nature of the recovery of the trad- ed horse by Basch.

Attorney Ewig, for the defense, asked at least six additional charges from the court, most of which were refused. The case went to the jury at 11 o'clock.

A jury was taken for Case No. 55, Irring Krom against Carrie Deitz, an action to recover for labor, work and services rendered. The plaintiff is represented by N. LeVan Haver and the defendant by M. O. Auchmoody. The case was opened before the noon recess of the court.

Frock That Is Suitable Throughout Entire Day

Here is one of those little frocks that owes everything—chic and prac- ticability—to an utterly frank sim- plicity. It is practical, says the Wom- an's Home Companion, because it is easily put together and, the last stitch taken, it is the type of dress you want to wear all the time. Make it in crepe de chine or flat crepe and you can put it on before breakfast and be at ease the whole day through. Make it in chiffon velvet—black, for instance, with a white georgette collar—and you are ready for a formal tea or an informal evening party. Of course it combines several Paris style features —a circular skirt, a slight suggestion of shirring on the bodice and a most important bertha collar. Using a dark- er tone of the material to border the collar gives an opportunity to accent one of your ensemble colors.

Detachable Collars and Cuffs on Coat Dresses

The coat dress is an established member and in good standing, espe- cially now that women are sponsoring wool for frocks, to say nothing of hats. It is smart to have the 1930 model coat dress fur trimmed which would pre- sent difficulties were it not feasible to have the collar and cuffs detachable. For that matter fur trimmings are not peculiar to the coat dress alone. Many formal afternoon frocks are the smart- er for a bit of fur at the neck, or a fur bow here, or there. A narrow edg- ing of white fur contributes much the same flattering note as a bit of lingerie collar. It is often reported to, for the prestige of fur is tremendous this sea- son; and designers have utilized it fully for both indoor and outdoor apparel.

Although fine woolen dresses are much the vogue, crepe marocain is very much in evidence at smart cir- cles. It may be remembered that this heavy crepe was highlighted at the fall openings, alone or in combination with something else. It is a weave particularly suitable for the season and the new silhouette. Applied bands are a clever trimming treatment of the crepe marocain frock while of course fur, especially galyak is widely used with it. Belted and bolero lines are other styles interpreted in either light- weight woolens or heavyweight crepes.

Elegance, Subtlety of Line, Milady's Desire

It is to the afternoon and evening fashions that we look for the develop- ments of the truly "feminine" mode of greater elaboration which we hear so much about, reports Betty Shannon in the Household Magazine. The tenden- cy, she finds, is toward a far greater "elegance" and subtlety of line than have been equaled since the war touched milady's wardrobe. Velvet takes the lead in all afternoon mate- rials, especially in plain colors and black; satin and satin crepes, canton, and flat crepes follow. Bottle or myr- tle green, rust, browns of reddish cast, all reds of dark shades and slightly purple cast, raspberry, cranberry, and the sun-tan range are much in de- mand.

Sleeves, in particular, bear the mark of elaboration in afternoon frocks, and much fine lace in old ivory is used to soften neck and wrist lines and adorn the edge of ties and berthas. Skirts are conspicuously longer, and by some ingenious arrangement of panels, or points or a dipping of the hem, arrive at an uneven hemline. There is a ten dency to drop-panel backs, some of which may be shirred into fullness or adjusted by cartridge plaits.

Green for Chic

Some of the smartest and best look- ing coats for winter wear are of dark green cloth. It is possible to get a luxurious model of hunter's green, trimmed lavishly with black raccoon or lynx. The high pointed cuffs and very deep collar of the fur add much to the beauty of the coat.

Button Chic

Buttons are marching right into front of fashion. A sweet violet taf- feta frock for afternoon tea or in- formal evening parties buttons clear up the back with decorative little cut steel and mother-of-pearl buttons in the shape of half moons with a little lady in them.

First Coffee in West?

The story runs that Capt. Gabriel de Clieu brought the first coffee plant to Martinique about the year 1723, de- priving himself of part of his supply of drinking water in order to keep the little plant alive on the long voyage from France.

Pantomimes Ancient

The first pantomime produced in England was at Drury Lane in 1702. It was called "The Tavern Builders." It was not until 1723, however, that the noted harlequin, John Rich, estab- lished the Christmas pantomime. This form of entertainment had long been popular, having been at its height in Rome in the time of Nero. Pantomime still has thousands of devotees through- out the world.

THE LOBBY GRAFT.

The lobby investigating committee has done more of late than show that there was no foundation for the claim that Mr. Hoover had interested himself in any single group and that his name was wilfully misused. The chief service which the committee has performed is the demonstration that lobbying is largely graft on its clients. Business executives will welcome this exposure of the big bunco game in Washington of which so many of them have been victims, and they are likely hereafter to be less ready to employ smooth-tongued persons who claim to be able to put through legislation through their influence with men in high places. According to Senator Caraway, chairman of the lobby investigating committee, "people might just as well go to a palm reader or crystal gazer" as to these glib gentry who now find that when they boasted of possessing the President's influence they went too far.

Senator Caraway, chairman of the lobby investigating committee, who is a Democrat and therefore not a supporter of the Administration, has not only made it clear that the President's relation to the "sugar mess" was altogether proper, but in his report to the Senate gives information of great importance about a system of pretense, bluff and graft that has flourished for years—as follows: "I hope that responsible business men will cease paying tribute to these lobbyists, these grafters in the District of Columbia who have nothing to sell. The whole scheme is simple graft. It is worse than that, because it plays upon the public and undermines the confidence of the American people in the integrity of their government."

The ceramics department of the University of Pennsylvania announces a new kind of paving. It has discovered a material and a process with which it can make brick 20 feet long, five feet wide and six to eight inches thick. The material is a vitreous clay substance said to be widely distributed and easily available in most parts of the country. These bricks require no foundation except a smooth-graded earth surface. Prof. Joseph B. Shaw says they will make roads "harder than concrete, cheaper than macadam and easier to build than either." If the slabs will stay put when they are laid, without working loose and uneven, and if they can't be battered to pieces by trucks, they should go a long way toward solving the paving problem.

Recently John D. Rockefeller III got a job with the Standard Oil Company and started ambitiously to work himself up from a salary "a great deal less than $100 a week." It might be as much as a plumber's helper begins with. Now John William Mackay, only son of Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph Company, heir presumptive to $100,000,000, has started working for his father's company as a telegrapher at $15 a week. When he learns to send 60 words a minute with not more than one mistake, he may get a raise of $5 a week. Eventually both of these young fellows will be rich. But they will have to prove their right to riches by earning their way and fitting themselves for the responsibility.

There comes a pathetic story about a Japanese who renounced all connections with his native land, tried to become an American in every particular, and then, when the Americans whose friendship he sought would have nothing to do with him, killed himself in despair. Perhaps the Americans involved did not mean to be unkind when they involuntarily voted in agreement with the proverb about the habits of birds of a feather. The poor young Jap forgot another proverb about the inability of the leopard to change his spots as it was made plain to him that the grand divisions of the human race are certain to remain distinct even in strange new clothes.

In an Outlook article Harold Brayman of the New York Evening Post defends the United States Senate against increasing criticism, holding that its atmosphere breeds progressivism, that in its independence it refuses to take orders, and that its record is immeasurably more liberal than that of the "machine-ridden" House. "The one subject," writes Mr. Brayman, "on which there is little liberality in the Senate is prohibition. When the Anti-Saloon League shouts, Senators who are otherwise progressive and liberal jump through the hoops with as much regularity as the old war horses of Wayne B. Wheeler in the House."

EPILEPSY AND DIGESTION.

I have spoken before of a series of 65 cases of epilepsy that were all cured — temporarily — by having a portion of the large intestine removed.

Unfortunately at intervals varying from a few months to a few years the epilepsy returned again in all of these cases.

I spoke also of a case I had kept free from epilepsy for 15 months by the washing out of the patient's stomach nearly every other day.

Now although epilepsy is thought to be due to some little trouble in the brain nothing has ever been found about the structure of the brain in epileptics that would give a positive clue to the cause of epilepsy.

However if removing a portion of the large intestine and washing out the stomach prevents attacks then there must be some relation between the digestive tract and epilepsy.

Some one has said that it is the stomach and intestine—some digestive disturbance—that is the match that lights the fire in the brain and epileptic attacks follow.

Dr. T. K. Davis of New York in investigating 40 cases of epilepsy tells us that nearly one-third of these showed a stasis or stoppage, or other trouble, in the small intestine.

This would seem to complete the case against the digestive tract.

And yet as the brain controls the activity of the digestive tract whether it moves its contents along slowly or rapidly, you can see how closely the two are related.

It has been found that in epileptics the processes of the body work a little slower than in others, and can be made to work even more slowly under certain conditions.

The thought then, aside from any drug treatment is that these individuals should eat a little less food than others, that they should spread meals well apart, that they should cut down somewhat on meats.

The fact that where a starvation treatment has been used no attacks have occurred tells its own story.

These individuals should be outdoors as much as possible, and have employment suited to their particular abilities, when possible.

Dr. Davis advises the use of an extract of one of the ductless glands which has the effect of strengthening the natural processes in the body.

I talk frequently about epilepsy because it is the cause of much misery in many homes.

ANNUAL MEETING AND LECTURE AT Y. W. C. A.

On Thursday evening of this week, one of the yearly outstanding events of our Young Women's Christian Association will occur when the annual meeting will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Hall at 7:45 o'clock, sharp. At that time new directors will be chosen for the coming year, and annual reports, which are always models of consciousness and pertinency will be given.

Following this business session, Mrs. Forbes-Robertson Hale, a most charming and exceedingly interesting and widely informed lecturer, according to a number of Kingstonians who have heard her, will be the speaker. She will talk on "Girls of Today, Women of Tomorrow," and according to these same Kingstonians, what the advance advertising folder says of Mrs. Hale, "those who have heard her once are invariably eager to seize a second opportunity. This meeting is open to the public and both men and women of the community are invited to be present.

The Rondout Social Manneruhor will hold its sixty-second annual masquerade ball on Monday evening, January 27, in the Downtown Jewish Community Center. The reason for not using Manneruhor Hall is because the patronage has outgrown the quarters and calls for a more spacious hall. Costume prizes will be awarded to the two best dressed ladies, the most comically dressed man and the best dressed man. Maisenhelder's Commanders will furnish music for dancing. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A QUESTION of HONOR

by Ruth Cross

SYNOPSIS: A dilemma confronts Anne Wilmot. She must choose between Scott Glenn and Leon Morse. Love dictates that she accept the former; obligation the latter. The romantic scene in the mountains in which Glenn told Anne of his love is revealed by Robert Douglas, who spied upon them. His jealousy aroused, Morse bluntly asks Anne to marry him. Anne answers she cannot refuse. A sleepless night follows and Anne, from her bedroom porch, overhears Morse and Douglas plotting destruction of Glenn's dam. Surreptitiously Anne flees to warn Glenn; realizing at last that she loves him.

Chapter 21

THE MOUNTAIN'S SECRET

SHEB'S lifelong quest was ended. The gold for which he had scoured the mountain peaks and the valleys through many long years of hardship had been found. The secret of the mountains to which the eccentric old prospector had sought the key with a great faith in its existence was revealed.

He and Glenn were rich, fabulously rich and by the merest accident. The blasting for the waterways had torn loose a boulder, revealing a vein of pure gold which extended, a cursory examination indicated, straight through the mountain.

Glenn had just pronounced his final decision as to the grade of the ore when his work had been interrupted by Anne's wandering into their midst. It was gold, Anne, and the irrigation project that occupied his thoughts as he approached the cabin after working late at the office to salve his conscience for the hours spent with Anne.

Sixteen hours' more toil and the tunnel through the mountain that was essential to the success of his irrigation project would be completed. Since Morse's visit there had followed two weeks of calm with no apparent move on the part of his enemy to carry out his threats.

Nevertheless Glenn was distrustful. He had seen Bretton and his assistants measuring off a tentative side for a bridge, but could not conceive either Morse or Burkhalter giving up so easily. He doubled the guard at the workings.

Undoubtedly there were millions in gold for he and Sheb and this gave Glenn no particular pleasure except insofar as it would enable him to repay Mrs. Wilmot for the money she had invested in Anne. That idea was pleasing. He was of an intensely independent nature and he disliked the thought of taking anything—even the woman he loved—at the cost of another.

She would be all his then; no one else would have any claim on her. That was simple enough. Whether a woman reared in the environment of luxurious ease as Anne Wilmot had been could ever be content with his rugged, harsh, unsettled life was quite another matter. He was not sure, but was hopeful.

One thing was sure. He could not change his mode of life materially. The leopard might as well try to change his spots. He was a part of the west just like the mountains and the streams he loved so well. If Anne loved him, she must live in his west.

Entering the cabin, he struck a light and sat down at a table to write two letters.

The first, the necessary application for filing on the claim; the second, a brief statement of the rich promise of his find and a request to business associates in San Francisco for a partial advance of the funds necessary to develop it.

Just as he finished the last letter, Sheb came in, followed by Japheth, the faithful. Glenn put down his pen and looked up. "Well, here's the application for filing," he said, handing Sheb the first letter. "I suppose you'll be off to the claim office the first thing in the morning?"

The old man nodded, as he crammed the letter into his pocket, and gave Glenn a shrewd glance out of his guileless blue eyes. "Ain't takin' no chances—I'm goin' to sleep at the diggins tonight!"

Glenn got up and dropped a hand on either of the gaunt shoulders.

"Congratulations, old partner," he said; "you've certainly earned this, and I'm mighty glad it's come while you're still young and husky enough to enjoy it!"

Sheb stood twisting his tattered old hat between his fingers. His eyes were fixed on the floor. His shoulders sagged a little farther inward than usual. "Now, I've found it," Sheb said, shaking his head in profound gloom, "they aint nuthin' left to live fer."

The younger man threw back his head and shouted with laughter, but the prospector went on morosely. "They aint nuthin' Japheth an' me want we aint got——" His face brightened ever so faintly. "We wuz jes' only huntin' the gold fer you anyhow!"

Glenn shook his head unequivocally. "Fifty-fifty, as we've always agreed," he said. "Cheer up, you'll find it's not half bad once you get used to the idea."

After Sheb and Japheth had gone, he began a restless stride up and down the room.

He was thankful for Sheb's sake that the strike had come while he could still enjoy it but for himself— Even with the money, which would of course soften some of the hard spots, what right had he to ask a woman like Anne Wilmot to share his life?

As he walked up and down, he glanced critically about the big, bare room, trying to picture her in it.

No, he had been worse than mad to dream that his love—and her's—could compensate for everything else.

His hands dropped at his side. All the eager, hopeful light had died out of his face. He sat down at the table again, folded the letter which he had written last and addressed it. He did not seal the envelope, however, but sat staring off into space—lost in thought.

At the sound of something stumbling against the steps outside, he lifted his head sharply. "Who's there?" he demanded, unbolting the door and peering out into the night.

There was no answer, but as he threw the door wider, something lurched against him. A tendril of hair brushed his cheek.

"Anne—!" he muttered dazedly.

He drew her inside and shoved the door to with his foot. She was struggling for breath. He felt the motion of her hands to her heart. "You're come all this way—alone—in the dark."

He pushed her down into a chair and bent over her. She was a sorry sight. Her hair was loosened. The skirt of her filmy gown was in ribbons, her shoes were heavy with mud. She looked up at him despairingly—it seemed the words would never come. She had run all the last part of the way, and her heart pounded so painfully against her side that every breath was like a stab. Glenn covered her cold, briar-torn hands with his; warmed them against his lips.

"It's your reservoir," she managed to say. "They've hired a Mexican named Tony, to dynamite it—right at the spot where it could never be rebuilt. They mean to do it tonight. You must go—at once!"

He was on his feet in an instant. She heard him cross the room—then the click of a revolver being loaded. He looked anxiously at her but she checked him. "I'm all right," she repeated. "You mustn't lose a minute."

Glenn was shaking himself hurriedly into his coat. "You know what it means," he said gravely, "your coming to me——?"

She looked up at him bewilderedly. "No — I hadn't thought—"

"Well, don't bother your head about it now," he broke in. "Just drop down on the couch there and try to get some rest. But—be sure to bolt the door behind me first. Good-bye."

Cannibal Mosquito Found To Protect Man

Honolulu (AP).—Discovery of a new weapon for exterminating mosquitos is disclosed in a campaign to rid Hawaiian sugar plantations of this pest.

A newly found race of mosquitos destroy the biting kind by millions, yet themselves lack the boring tool necessary to bite man.

The cannibals are whoppers, an inch long, brightly colored in blues, greens and browns.

It sounds like a fairy tale to add that in adult stage after they have destroyed their quota of mosquitos, they live on the nectar of flowers and juices of crushed or broken fruit, but that is the plain, scientific dietary fact reported by their discoverer, C. E. Pemberton, a Hawaiian entomologist.

Pemberton found these mosquitos while hunting for the most effective of all methods of insect control—namely, a parasite, a bug which lives on the pest, and incidentally kills him.

He found in New Britain the answer in the larvae of the large, bright-colored mosquitos whose scientific name is Megarhinus hornatus.

These larvae were feeding on other larvae, with preference for the wigglers of blood-sucking mosquitos. Pemberton found that each big mother cannibal mosquito laid about 60 eggs, and each wiggler developing therefrom ate about 250 larvae.

Arithmetic shows that the young of one mother might destroy about 15,000 mosquitos and her grandchildren more than 50,000,000.

Recently Pemberton turned loose among the plantations 300 of the big larvae to see whether they would multiply in their new home.

Transporting them from New Britain required entomological legerdemain. The steamers take more than 21 days for the trip but after 21 days the wigglers turn into mosquitos.

Pemberton needed them to be still in the wiggler stage on arrival.

He learned how to delay their maturity by underfeeding. At each stop he went ashore, catching mosquito larvae for his flock of 300, and brought them through safely.

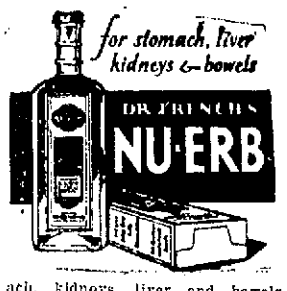
Tired Worn Out Feeling Banished; Dizziness Ended

Washington Avenue Man Gives Full Credit To Nu-Erb For New Feeling Of Health.

"My entire system must have been in a badly rundown condition, when I started using the Nu-Erb," said Mr. Thomas Callahan, 308 Washington Ave., Kingston, N. Y. "I seemed to have lost all my former strength and energy and I felt tired and wornout all of the time. I was subject to dizzy spells, dark floating spots appeared before my eyes and my nerves were in a very weakened condition.

"Although other medicines had failed to help me, Nu-Erb has practically overcome each one of these troubles. As a result I am feeling stronger and have more energy than I have had for many months. The dizzy spells, spots before my eyes and nervousness are all a thing of the past. I sleep soundly at night, have a splendid appetite and my entire system has improved in every way. I do not hesitate to recommend Nu-Erb to anyone."

Nu-Erb is a splendid system cleanser and health builder. The ideal natural tonic. It cleanses the system of poisonous waste matter, strengthens and regulates the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, quiets the nerves and promotes sound refreshing sleep. If you suffer in any way you owe it to yourself to investigate this herbal medicine today.



McBride Drug Store, 312 Wall St., is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

It outranks anything we have ever done in design, performance or value.

Arnold Bennett remarked recently that a man takes more care in choosing a car than in choosing a wife:

Why is it when I buy a car
Careful inquiry I must make,
How many cylinders there are
And if it's got a four-wheel brake,
And if the bearings are indeed
Quite strong enough for constant use,
How many miles I can proceed
Per gallon of the vital juice?

And yet, when I select a wife
None of these things do I require,
Although I'm taking her for life
And each of us may quickly tire;
Why do I rush to make her mine?
The reason is not far to seek—
Cars are of standardized design,
While every woman is unique.

Woman Invents Radio Tube With Renewable Filament

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Radio Editor
(Associated Press Feature Service)

Cleveland, Ohio (AP).—A "darning needle that glows" has been placed in a radio tube by a woman.

The result is a tube of indefinite life. For should the needle, which really is the filament or heater, burn out, it can be replaced.

Filament renewals are made without disturbing the vacuum of the tube.

The woman who thus has removed from radio one of its greatest bugaboos, the burnt out tube, is Mrs. Clara E. Quinn, a mother who guided the footsteps of her son to healthy manhood while aiding progress by her work in the laboratory.

Three years of extensive experimenting was necessary before Mrs. Quinn, who is an electrical engineer, felt that her development was foolproof.

In the ordinary tube, the filament or heater is in the vacuum and cannot be changed without breaking the bulb. There are two types of filaments, one which emits electrons directly, and the other which heats the cathode or electronic emitter thermostatically.

Mrs. Quinn's tube is of the heater type, with the filament outside the vacuum. It is a high resistance wire, well insulated. The filament is fastened to a removable section of the tube's base held in place by a small screw. This section also contains the two filament prongs.

Built permanently in the tube are the grid, plate and cathode, which is a small hollow tube of special metal, open at the bottom, into which the filament is inserted. This hollow tube is sealed in so that no air can get into the tube proper.

Such a filament burns in the open air. While it is in the center of the tube, it is actually outside the vacuum. It heats the cathode, which glows dull red like a hot poker, by thermostatic action. Life tests have shown the filament will last from 8,000 to 12,000 hours. So far three types—226, 227 and 171a—have been developed.

Mrs. Quinn has been associated with the electric light industry since 1899, having first started her career as a teacher of stenography and accounting. All of her spare time has been devoted to study and research.

Late in 1922 she entered electrical development work on her own account, establishing a laboratory and factory in Cleveland, from which she made numerous contributions to radio.

It was there three years ago she saw the possibilities of the "darning needle" tube.

Thankful for Funds for Jews

Syracuse, Jan. 21—Gratitude for their efforts in the drive to obtain relief for the Jews of eastern Europe is expressed to the Jewish people and officers of the United Jewish Campaign of Kingston by Bernard B. Given, state chairman of the appeal, in a communication announcing the close of the campaign. The officers of Kingston are: Frant Formal, chairman; Joseph Kirschner, vice chairman; Max Jacobson treasurer; Henry Klein, secretary.

The United Jewish Campaign began in New York state in the spring of 1926. Thousands of Jewish people contributed to the fund, and hundreds of men and women of the Jewish faith in every city worked tirelessly to make the drive a success. To date about $650,00 has been paid in, with final collections promising to bring the total upstate contribution up to $700,00. More than $8,000,000 was raised in the state including New York city.

Some of the leadig personalities of the United States, among them the late Louis Marshall, David A. Brown, and Lieutenant-Governor Herbert H. Lehman, took an active part in the upstate campaign, with Mr. Given, a prominent businessand civic leader of Syracuse, directing the work. Many non-Jews cooerated with local Jewish campaign committees and a large number of non-Jews made substantial contributins to help relieve the suffering among the Jewish people of EasternEurope.

The money colected was used to establish Jewish families on farms in Soviet Russia, to help in the development of the Jewish settlements in the Holy Land and to preserve Jewish cultural and religious institutions, such as schools, the famous yeshivas, and for hospitals and orphanages. In addition scores of thousands of men, women and children were saved from starvation in Poland, Rumania, Lithuania and other eastern European countries.

Mr. Given in his letter of thanks to those who have worked under his leadership in the drive says:

"Our 1926 Jiited Jewish Campaign has officially ended and you have been relived of any further responsibility in this effort in your community. I want to congratulate you upon the splendid, unselfish, fine humanitarian service you have rendered to the cause of our brethren.

"It is something you can well be proud of and those who are near and dear to you an share in your happiness becaus of the enobling work accomplished in this great humanitarian, constructive effort. May God grant you health, life and strength for many more years to come and ever inspire you to serve in every crisis and call.

"I wish to assure you of my deep sense of appreciation of your loyalty to me as your state chairman, and hope you will always hold yourself ready to respond at any time, as I will, to the call of the unfortunate and needy."

Embroidery Lends Its Charm to Southern Dance Frocks.

New York—Honors are about evenly divided between satin and tulle for evening judging from reports coming in from Palm Beach and other fashionable resorts. This does not mean that chiffons, plain or printed, are not worn but rather they have became such a familiar sight that one overlooks mentioning their presence.

Interesting embroidered chiffons as well as embroidered fabrics generally are coming to the fore, among the types especially stressed being eyelet effects. It is amusing to note also that the craze for sensational modernistic motifs seems to have abated and that there is a strong preference manifested for quaint flower designs and a revival of bouquet ideas often involving bowknots.

While one reads of hemlines that clear the floor, there are also reports of frocks so long that their trains are looped up over the arm after the custom of by-gone years. There is also a tendency to the off-the-shoulder decolletage, and this coupled with a molded bodice, subtly suggesting a high waist, introduces a picturesque and reminiscent flavor into modern life. The universal acceptance of taffeta is another revival of considerable moment.

(Copyright, 1930, by Fairchild.)

This model has bouquets of flowers handblocked at wide intervals on a navy chiffon ground, accented at the neck and down the front with the printed border of the silk.

It is not often that a fashion as generally accepted as the flower corsage goes out and come in again as quickly as has been the case this year. For a brief space the evening gown was sans flowers, again it seems curiously incomplete without them. All manner of amusing positions, often at the back, are approved for them.

"UNCLE SAM AT YOUR SERVICE" — Where Taxes Come From. — By Quig Staver

A population census of the U. S. is taken every ten years mainly to determine the number of Representatives that may be elected to sit in the House from each State. The 71st House is composed of 435, one for each 211,877 inhabitants in accordance with the census of 1910. Members are elected for a term of two years, and all terms expire simultaneously. The House elects its own presiding officer, the Speaker.

All tax laws and bills appropriating money must originate here; the Senate must agree, of course, and may make amendments. The rules of procedure do not permit a member to speak for an unlimited time, as in the Senate. The symbol of authority in the House is the Mace; but seldom need the Speaker direct the Sergeant at Arms to restore order by carrying the Mace out onto the floor and to the seat of the offender.

Neither Branch of Congress, as a body, could possibly consider the endless stream of bills introduced; so committees are appointed to review them. A committee holds hearings, and amends, or changes, an original bill on the basis of facts developed from testimony of Government Department experts, and others who favor or oppose the bill becoming a law. Congress does not usually act on a bill until it is passed on favorably by the proper committee in each Branch. Thousands of proposed laws "die" in committee rooms. The Appropriation committee of each House is very powerful as no Government busines can be conducted without an appropriation to pay the expenses. The Senate has 33 standing committees all the House twice that number.

Tomorrow—The President's Power to Veto.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

Palm Beach dinner guests approve even ankle length skirts and are partial to princess lines.

Flat crepe in chalk white and pastel shades is highlighted from this resort, and in direct contrast to this are black lace frocks of cobweb texture.

Beads and spangles are appearing in greater numbers on evening gowns.

A revival of Valenciennes lace is among the predictions for spring. This dainty lace is expected to supplant Alencon and Point Venice for lingerie.

Woven straw ribbons are among the novelties introduced for making turbans and trimming hats.

Printed linens and silks tend toward small, decidedly discreet designs.

Linen overalls are a feature of the Palm Beach season. The mechanic's suit is a favorite in all colors.

Azelea pink is listed among the many pinks popular at the moment—it is used in linen, cotton and both flat and satin crepe, being especially well liked for blouses.

Embroidered batiste, dotted Swiss and printed voiles are among the cottons advanced for the formal southern frock.

White organdie gowns are being selected by some of the smartest debutantes this season and are being offered for bridesmaid frocks.

Straws woven in semblance of linen and with the same adaptability as felt are enjoying favor.

The cloche is being revived for spring and is being worn in the south—medium size brims being preferred.

Companion woolens as well as companion silks are being made up in spring ensembles. Many of these have much the effect of men's suitings but are lighter in weight.

Wool crepes are well liked by French manufacturers for spring.

Shantung is also in high favor.

Lingerie accessory details are important in all spring dress collections.

Baby colors, notably pink and blue, continue to be emphasized in reports of all smart parties north and south. Chalk white has also become far more fashionable than the several off-white shades worn heretofore.

Many spring suits are belted—all acknowledge the waistline in some way.

Jewelry in fruit motif is one of the newest ideas and is being shown in precious and semi-precious effects, usually in fruit coloring with crystal, prystal or gold.

Scarfs have assumed cravat lines and are worn cravat fashion under the chin, or bowed as Grouny uses them with her new spring suits.

As beige passes as a smart color, gray comes under lively discussion since the need of a neutral color is always felt.

Navy blue is heralded for spring.

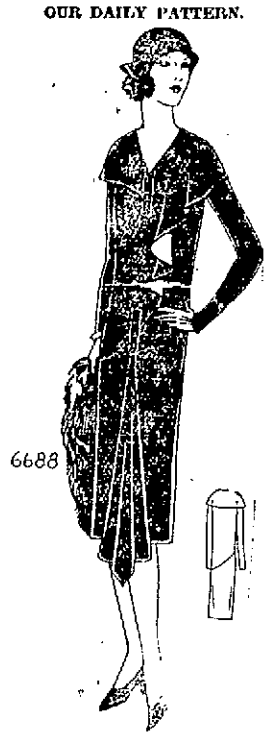
OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Distinctive Model.

6688. This design will make a very pretty afternoon dress in plain or printed velvet, or satin. It has fitted lines and graceful fulness. It is a splendid style for slender figures. The right front crosses over the left in soft folds, and forms a cape at the shoulders; the cape is repeated on the back and over the right side. The front is gathered under a pointed tab, that extends over the top of a flare godet. This godet creates a front dip. Asymmetric lines are a feature of this style. The sleeve is a one piece fitted model.

This pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38 inch size will require 5¼ yards of 39 inch material. To face the cape and its extension with contrasting material will require 1 yard 39 inches wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with godet fulness extended is 1⅞ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, Jan. 21.—On Wednesday evening, January 15, at the regular meeting of Wawarsing Lodge, F. & A. M., Garry Brown, retiring master, was presented with a beautiful white gold Hamilton watch as a token of appreciation of his faithful work during the year. The presentation was made in a pleasing manner by Dr. F. M. Holcombe, who is a past master of Lake Placid Lodge.

E. S. Davenport of Warwick has a position at the Ulster Knife Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson, Jr., of Queens Village, L. I., accompanied by Miss Mildred F. Johnson of Brooklyn and Mr. Ritgers of Des Moines, Iowa, motored up Saturday and spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson of Bloomer street.

Frank Rose of this village, driving his Willys-Knight, figured in an accident near the Wawarsing cemetery with an Auburn car driven by a party from Kingston, on Thursday evening. Both cars were badly damaged.

Little Miriam Douglas, daughter of Mrs. Belle Douglas, of Maple avenue, who has been seriously ill, is very much improved.

PLATTEKILL GRANGE HOLDS IMPRESSIVE INSTALLATION

Plattekill, Jan. 22.—Fred J. Freestone, worthy master of New York State Grange, was the guest of honor at the regular meeting of the Grange on Thursday evening. Attendance exceeded 200. Following the banquet served at 6:30, a business meeting was held, after which the recently elected officers were installed with a most impressive ceremony conducted by Mr. Freestone. Mrs. H. Sutton, Mrs. Clayton Jenkins, as marshals; Mrs. Ralph Harcourt as emblem bearer and Miss Irene Sickler as regalia bearer, of Clintondale Grange, were his assistants. Nine beautiful tableaux, arranged and presented by other ladies of Clintondale Grange, added much to the installation rites.

The other guests of the evening included Ulster County Deputy Wells G. Weaver, Orange County Deputy G. C. Mould of Montgomery, Master of Orange County Pomona Grange R. C. Farley, of Hamptonburg; Secretary of Orange County Pomona Grange Natalie C. Barnes, of Newburgh; J. F. Johannsen, master of Mountainville Grange; Ralph Harcourt, master of Clintondale Grange.

Past Master Ira Thompson was presented with a gold Grange badge by his fellow patrons in appreciation of his six years of faithful service as master. The presentation was made by J. Gerow Wilkin, who cited facts showing the remarkable advancement and progress of the Grange during that time.

Mr. Hulsebusch of Wallkill entertained with violin selections. He was accompanied on the piano by his daughter, Mrs. H. Swenson. Miss Lais of Milton rendered a much enjoyed vocali sola, "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine." "The Show Actress," a one-act play arranged by the lecturer, Mrs. Charles Jenkins, played by Miss Maella Paltridge, Edgar Kaup, Mrs. Wygant Courter, Jr., Wilson Edmunds, Ida M. Cronk, Mrs. Burton Wood and John Hecht, afforded much amusement. Mr. Freestone in his closing remarks cited facts showing great Grange progress in the U. S. during the past year and urged cooperation of all New York state patrons in acting as host to the National Grange in November, 1930.

The next meeting of the Grange will be held on Saturday evening, when the program will be in charge of the officers. Hosts and hostesses for the evening will be: Mr. and Mrs. R. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hedges, Horace Dulmberre, Mary E. and Emma Ward, Mr. and Mrs. James Coey, Harry Roosa, Richard Coy, Jr. A surprise feature is in store for that evening, it is reported.

Mrs. Dagmar Nelson will entertain the officers of the Grange at her home on Thursday evening.

Plans have been made for the presentation of "The Managers," the one-act prize winning play, at the Grange Hall on Saturday evening, February 1. There will be many other entertaining features to complete the evening's program. The full program will be printed next week. Refreshments will be for sale at a nominal price by Grange members.

DEATH OF MRS. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 22 (AP).—Arrangements were being completed today for the removal to Washington, D. C., of the body of Mrs. Mary Baird Bryan, 69, widow of William Jennings Bryan, for burial beside her famous husband in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Bryan died here last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, wife of a Beverley Hills, Cal., banker. She had been suffering from arthritis for about 12 years, but her condition was not considered serious until her return here three months ago from Miami, Fla., where she had visited another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, member of Congress from Florida.

Mrs. Bryan, who before her marriage on October 8, 1884, was Mary Elizabeth Baird of Perry, Illinois, recently had completed writing a biography of her husband, which had been begun as an autobiography by the commoner.

Besides her children Mrs. Bryan is survived by three grandsons, children of William Jennings Bryan, Jr., two granddaughters and two grandsons, children of Mrs. Hargreaves, and two granddaughters and two grandsons, children of Mrs. Owen.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

LIFE'S LEVELS

AN ARTIST who never sees the work of other artists is unconscious of his own defects. To live and work within a world of one's own imagination may give one a comfortable feeling of self-satisfaction, but fails to produce any work of permanent value. The machine man, or automaton, is not alive. He is quite dead. The dead level in a world of life values is caused by the absence of contacts. The rock is dead because it has no power within itself to cause it to grow; it remains the same year in and out. The absence of contacts in either the natural or moral world means death. The dead level in the world of mental and spiritual values has been reached when growth or development is impossible.

L. A. Barrett.

The flowers suggest a higher level. They make contacts with the sun, rain and the moisture of mother earth. The living level is a higher realm of experience, in which environment has a very important influence.

Science may create a living level, but heart values create the aspiring level. On this level character, ambition, purposes, ideals rush for expression. On the aspiring level no problem is too difficult to encounter and no situation too dangerous to meet. The spirit of the aspiring level is to conquer, succeed and achieve. You may teach a dog a trick, but the trick dies with the dog. He cannot teach it to other dogs. Upon the mere living levels nothing more than that can possibly be accomplished, but the urge upon the aspiring levels is to bequeath to other generations the results of the best thought and experience of our own day.

The spirit of the aspiring level impelled Commander Byrd to attempt his 1,600 miles of aerial travel and to be the first man ever to have flown across both the North and South poles. It is the spirit of discovery and adventure; the spirit which creates, investigates and takes great risks in pursuit of permanent life values. The dead level is indifference; the living level is selfishness; the aspiring level is service.

USED $300,000 BANK FUNDS TO BUY BOOM REAL ESTATE.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 22 (AP).—Misappropriation of approximately $300,000 of the funds of the Bank of Ensley, a suburban institution which suspended business recently, has been confessed, according to the county solicitor, by Earl Fricks and Herman Smith, former assistant cashier and head teller respectively.

Solicitor George L. Bailes, who said the pair told him they used the money to buy real estate during a land boom in this region two years ago, has placed Fricks and Smith in jail on embezzlement charges. Bail for each has been set at $50,000.

When the men were arrested yesterday a depositors' committee announced that approximately 80 per cent of the shortage is expected to be realized through bonds of $50,000 each carried by the pair and through the sale of their real estate.

SUDDEN DEATH OF FORMER ASSEMBLYMAN

William Wallace Chace, an attorney of Hudson, N. Y., who was elected to the Assembly in 1915 and served three terms; died of a heart ailment on Sunday in Albany City Hospital. He had argued a case on Thursday morning before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and was stricken in the afternoon while still in the courthouse. He was fifty-eight years old.

Mr. Chace had completed a term as Corporation Counsel of Hudson on December 31 last, had been a member of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, was a director of the First National Bank of Hudson and an officer of the Home for the Aged in that city. He was a Mason, a member of the Hudson Rotary Club and of the Chamber of Commerce. His wife, Mrs. Agnes Smith Chace, two daughters and his brother survive.

Attempt Life of State's Attorney

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP).—A frustrated attempt to bomb Assistant State's Attorney Edward Markham, followed by an unsuccessful gun attack upon him, was revealed today. The motive was attributed to the warfare upon an alcohol ring in the suburb of Melrose Park.

The attack upon Markham had been kept secret several days, but when word of it got about yesterday, the assistant state's attorney filled in the details.

The barking of his dog at the rear of his home about 9:30 o'clock the evening of January 16 took Markham to the yard on the run.

"Of course, I have received several threats," said Markham, who has been active in the state and Federal drive against Melrose Park distillers, "and I feared my 11 year old son was being kidnapped.

"As I reached the yard, two men ran from the garage. The dog grabbed one. The other fired point blank at me, but missed. By the time I got my shotgun the two men were running down the alley, probably to a waiting automobile.

"Inside the garage I found the hood lifted from the automobile. The ignition has been tampered with, I believe for the purpose of planting a bomb which would have exploded when I attempted to start the motor."

No trace had been found early today of Police Lieutenant Enrico Passarella, missing since last week, but a newspaper reporter discovered Passarella's brother officer, Patrolman Emil Ristan, at Aurora, Ill., last night. Ristan and Mrs. Ristan disappeared at the same time as Passarella. The patrolman refused to discuss his departure from Melrose Park and wound up by tossing the reporter from the house of Mrs. Ristan's mother, where he had been staying.

NEW COLD WAVE IN WESTERN HALF OF DIXIE.

Atlanta, Jan. 22 (AP).—A new cold wave whipped the western half of Dixie today, chilling Arkansas with near zero temperatures and pulling the mercury below the freezing point in Tennessee, Mississippi and northern Louisiana.

Snow accompanied the biting winds in Arkansas, laying a one to three-inch fall over most of the state. Snow also was falling in Nashville, Tenn. Louisiana and Mississippi experienced rain and sleet.

Fayetteville and Bentonville in the extreme northwest part of Arkansas felt two degrees above zero last midnight, a drop of six degrees in as many hours.

The frigid blasts spread slowly toward the Atlantic seaboard. Temperatures were normal in Alabama and Georgia, but forecasters said the bitter cold would sweep eastward through these states to the Carolinas and Virginia.

Marks on Wood

Marks caused with hot plates or hot-water jugs, etc., on polished tables may be removed by the following application: Mix a tiny pinch of salt with a little olive oil and rub into affected parts. If the mark doesn't disappear with the first application, allow the mixture to remain on, and in a few hours' time apply the salt and oil again, rubbing with a circular movement.

Doctrines of Socrates

Socrates wrote nothing, but his doctrines are believed to be preserved in the writings of Plato and Xenophon.

Cold Wave in Middle West

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP).—Zero dragged more of its kind of weather from the refrigerator today and served to the middle west ice cold.

"Not a whiff of warm weather in sight," said the government weather bureau here, glancing over a temperature chart showing readings almost entirely in the sub zeros.

Chicago, not yet thawed from its experience with 16 below weather last week, was promised temperatures around 10 below, with a daytime maximum of 10 to 15 above. The reading at Milwaukee last night was minus 10, while in Nebraska—at North Platte—the low reading was minus 22. In the Dakotas and Minnesota it was cold, but temperatures were generally much less severe than during the cold snap of last week.

There were no indications of snow accompanying the cold wave. The weather bureau said zero temperatures were not unlikely for the remainder of the week.

The cold claimed two lives in Chicago. A woman was found frozen to death, her body, wrapped in a blanket being found beside a fireless stove. The body of a man, who apparently had been walking in his sleep, was found in a driveway.

To Head Off Colds

The common cold is a mystery. Sometimes you get it and sometimes you don't, though conditions may seem the same. One thing you can be certain of, you are less likely to have a cold if you keep your physical condition up to par. Sleep enough, eat enough, exercise a little and not too much, worry not at all. Live up to this program and colds will be few.—Capper's Weekly.

Dogs' Teeth Money

Perhaps the strangest system of currency yet discovered among primitive peoples is that used by the Solomon islanders late in the last century. Dogs' teeth were the gold of the system, and only two teeth from any one dog were acceptable as legal tender. These were drilled through for stringing, and the more wealthy natives sometimes owned long necklaces of them. Ten teeth paid for a good quality wife, while a moderately fine young man could be bought at a slightly cheaper rate.

Wisdom of Seneca

Shun no toil to make yourself remarkable by some one talent. Yet do not devote yourself to one branch exclusively. Strive to get clear notions about all. Give up no science entirely, for all science is one.—Seneca.

AT THE THEATRES

Today

Kingston: "The Virginian," a picture of the west as was, and Gary Cooper as the glamorous hero who made famous, "When You Call Me That—Smile". A good picture.

Broadway: "South Sea Rose," in a tropical setting Lenore Ulric, star of many Broadway successes, enchants men of more frigid nature, and sings about being true to one. We wonder?

Orpheum: "Love, Live and Laugh", George Jessel does all three in a likable, lovable manner for Lila Lee, to make a charming picture.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Broadway: "A Song of Kentucky". Gambling, thoroughbred women and horses, traditions of the "blue grass" and the derby furnish plenty of action for Lois Moran and Joseph Wagstaff in this tale of the romantic south.

Orpheum: "Queen of the Night Clubs". The "hello sucker" queen comes into her own on the silver sheet. Texas Guinan will give you plenty to think about for the evening.

Legion Dinner at Albany January 28

All Legionnaires are invited to the state legislative dinner of the American Legion which will be held in the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany Tuesday evening, January 28, at 6:30.

This dinner is given annually by the American Legion of the state in honor of the members of the state legislature who are World War veterans. Governor Roosevelt, Lieutenant Governor Lehman, Attorney General Ward, Majority Leader Dunmore, National Commander Bodenhamer and State Commander Bennett will be the speakers.

The dinner will be served to about 500 Legionnaires, Senators and Assemblymen from all over the state in the private dining room atop the hotel. Each county has its own table. Ulster county's table this year is going to be a large one because Legionnaires from almost every Post in the county are expected to attend. The following local men have already made reservations: C. J. Heiselman, Thomas F. Coughlin, Herman I. DuBois, Eugene B. Carey, Andrew J. Murphy, Roy E. Jacob, Walter J. Miller, James H. Betts, Lester C. Elmendorf, Edward J. Hillis, Reginald A. Dechene, Stanley Dempsey, Alvarez D. Rose, Meyer Kaplan and Edward J. Leudtke.

This annual dinner is one of the finest Legion affairs of the year. There is still time to make reservations by calling Andrew J. Murphy, Jr., in charge of arrangements for the local delegation.

READY FOR PILGRIMAGE OF TWENTY-SEVENTH DIVISION

Preparations for the overseas activities of the Twenty-Seventh Division on its first pilgrimage to its World War cemeteries, battlefields and rendezvous have been completed by Major General John F. O'Ryan and Brigadier General J. Leslie Kincaid on a European trip for that purpose. Now the slogan is "On to Paris."

Word of successful completion of arrangements was sent by Major General O'Ryan from the S. S. Leviathan, returning to New York, in a radiogram to Major George E. Ramsey, president of the division association. The Western Union-RCA radiogram follows:

"All arrangements made Europe for royal reception: England, Belgium and France through civil and military officials. Servicemen organizations and American Legion assure cooperation. Great interest in Europe in Gold Star Mothers. Veterans British divisions with which we participated in Flanders battles being notified so may meet and fraternize. Field Marshall Lord Plummer sends greetings will attend convention. General Gouroud, military governor Paris, sends greetings. O'Ryan."

At least 1,500 members of "New York's Own", from every part of the state, are expected to sail May 13 on the S. S. Republic which was named The President Grant twelve years ago when it carried many of the same "boys" to France. The same men will go this spring, not for the fight of their lives, but for the time of their lives with a reunion in London, a reception in Brussels, a tour of the old Somme and Flanders battlefields, and whoopee once more in Gay Paree."

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Jan. 21.—The countryside lies buried beneath a six-inch mantle of white. Travel was not unduly hampered as snow ploughs promptly opened the town roads connecting with the boulevard which was likewise scraped by the county road crews.

Sunday afternoon church service was well attended, with a number of out of town visitors. Announcement was made that the Ladies' Aid Society would hold an all day quilting in the church basement on Wednesday of this week. All members and visitors are cordially invited to attend.

As had been anticipated, the party given Saturday evening by Miss Gladys Vandemark at Colange Hall, proved to be one of the season's most brilliant social successes. Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—Bullish sentiment was more pronounced in today's stock market although there were enough soft spots scattered throughout the list to give it the appearance of irregularity. Extreme gains of 1 to 10 points established in the morning trading were fairly well maintained, with trading showing a moderate increase in volume.

Business news had a more cheerful tinge. Reports of a further upturn in steel mill activity and a reduction in unemployment were buttressed by some good 1929 earnings statements.

Chain store and merchandising issues attracted a good following. Spiegel May Stern advancing nearly 5 points, R. H. Macy 4, and Montgomery Ward, United Stores preferred and Schulte common 2 points or more. Schulte preferred jumped 9 points.

Rumors of new financing tended to check bullish enthusiasm for several of the public utilities. Rails were inactive.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Air Reduction broke 7½ and 7 points, respectively, but recovered about half their losses by early afternoon. Republic Steel preferred sold off 3 points. American Commercial Alcohol, American Zinc preferred, Commercial Solvents, National Biscuit (old stock) and Auburn sold down 2 to 4 points, while Anaconda and some of the other coppers declined a point or so.

Call money again dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent.

Canyon Worthily Ranks as Marvel of Nature

To understand the immensity of the Grand canyon, it is necessary to know something of the Colorado river, which, incidentally, must be included among the great rivers of North America. It is formed in southern Utah by the confluence of the Green and the Grand rivers. It enters Arizona at the northwestern corner and flows southward to the Gulf of California. It drains an area of 300,000 square miles. Only at three points is it crossed by a railroad.

The Spaniards were the first white men to view the great wonder of nature. Spanish explorers first reported seeing it as early as 1540 and in 1776 a Spanish priest found a crossing that still bears his name. The first man to make anything like a complete survey of the river and the canyon through which it flows, was Maj. John Wesley Powell, a geologist and a school teacher, a one-armed veteran of the Civil war. With a crew of men and boats, he traversed the river from its source to its mouth in 1869.

The Grand canyon has long been a haven for geologists. It furnishes them with an ideal setting to study the earth's strata. And it is no less a haven for tourists.

Many "Black Fridays" in Financial Circles

"Black Friday" does not refer to a particular date, as often supposed, but is the name given to several Fridays on which financial panics have occurred. Apparently the term was first applied to the Friday in December, 1745, when the news was received in London that Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender, had reached Derby, only ten days' march from the capital. A financial panic resulted immediately. "Black Friday" was probably suggested by analogy with Black Monday, an old name for the Monday following Easter. The term "Black Friday" was revived in England for May 11, 1866, when a panic followed the failure of the London firm of Overend, Gurney & Co. In the United States the term is applied to September 24, 1869, when a panic occurred as the result of Jay Gould's efforts to corner the gold market in New York, and to September 19, 1873, when a panic followed the failure of the banking firm of Jay Cook & Co.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Facts About Sponges

Sponges are very irregular in form, symmetrical ones being rare, and their color is as variable as their shape. Deep-sea sponges, like other animals that live in the dark, are generally light in color; but those that live in shallow water are very bright, and the color assumed by the sponge is generally for purposes of defense, or to frighten away other animals. Sponges are very abundant in the Australian seas; especially is this the case with the horny or highest form of sponges.

Cooling for a Year

A huge mirror which took nearly a year to cool down has been made in England for a large reflecting telescope. Weighing more than a ton and a half, it is sixty-nine inches in diameter and ten inches thick. Disks of glass of this size are difficult to get free from defects, and after the molten glass has been poured into the mold it has to be kept hot by electric heaters and cooled down over a period of many months.

She was the oldest living member of Trinity M. E. Edgar Scott Burhans, the son, was for 30 years associated in business with his uncle, Albert Mauterstock, and since the dissolution of that business Mr. Burhans has not been actively engaged in any business. A fine Christian man, Mr. Burhans was quiet and unostentatious but deeply interested in all that made for the betterment of Kingston, his home city. The services this afternoon were in charge of the Rev. Dr. Leach, pastor of the Trinity M. E. Church.

OBJECTS TO HEARING "OLD PAL" ALL THE TIME

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP).—The charge that broadcasting as authorized by the radio commission had been "prostituted" and that the value of programs offered by 600 stations was based upon their popularity, was made before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today by Hope Thompson, Chicago attorney.

Thompson made his charge in bringing the claim to station WCFL, of Chicago, operated by the American Federation of Labor, for a cleared channel. The station is now required by the commission to cease broadcasting at sunset, Pacific time, and an appeal is pending.

Thompson said the station could do almost nothing on daylight hours with the educational programs it wished to present, but that other stations were broadcasting purely popular programs nightly.

"Why should the air be used," he asked, "to sing 'Old Pal' all the time."

He added that WCFL was not opposed to entertainment part of the time, but that its theory was that the air ought also be used to educate and instruct.

The witness expressed the opinion that Congress could control the situation but that it did not have the "nerve" to do so.

Radio Sets in 10,000,000 Homes

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP).—An estimated increase in the number of homes equipped with radio sets from 60,000 in 1922 to at least 10,000,000 at the present time was reported by W. D. Terrell, chief of the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce, in hearings on the department's annual supply bill.

The audience in 1922, he told a house sub-committee, was estimated at 75,000 while the audience this year is estimated at more than 40,000,000.

"The total radio sales covering mostly receiving sets and accessories for the fiscal year 1922 amounted to $60,000,000," he said, "while in 1928 the figures were given $650,550,000. The exports amounted to $2,800,000 and in 1928 to $10,907,000.

"It is estimated that there are 19,000,000 homes without radios. The Radio Manufacturers' Association states that although $2,500,000,000 in radio products have been manufactured since 1922, there was no saturation point in sight.

"The Department of Commerce estimated that during the first three quarters of 1929 sales of radio equipment reached a total of $360,897,207, with the heaviest quarter yet to be heard from."

FILES LIBEL AGAINST MIDDLETOWN SILK MILL

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—In a procedure novel to prohibition enforcement in this district, Assistant U. S. Attorney Leonard Bronner, Jr., today filed a libel against the so-called Old Silk Mill in Middletown, N. Y., for the purpose of confiscating real estate valued at $100,000.

The silk mill and an old car barn in Middletown were raided recently by prohibition agents who arrested Morris Marks, a real estate dealer, Bernard Levinson, a produce dealer and four others on charges of violating the liquor laws. It was charged they redistilled lactine for use in the manufacture of liquors.

The law under which forfeiture of the silk mill is sought was adopted in 1865 and provided that any building in which an illicit still is found may be confiscated with the ground upon which it is located by the government.

Mellon Approves Transfer of The Prohibition Unit

From the Treasury to the Justice Department, But Flatly Refuses to Be Drawn Into a Discussion of the Prohibition Question.

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP).—Andrew W. Mellon, who took over the treasury portfolio about the time the dry law was placed upon the statute books, recommended to a congressional committee today the transfer of the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department, but flatly refused to be drawn into a discussion of the prohibition question.

The man who has had more than eight years' experience under three presidents as head of the department which has jurisdiction over the major dry law enforcement units, was pressed again and again by members of the house expenditures committee with questions on the controversial prohibition subject.

"I am sure we have made every effort to carry out our responsibility," was his answer to Representative Igoe, Republican, Illinois, who had asked if Mellon believed the prohibition bureau had done everything feasible to enforce the law.

"Then you think prohibition can be enforced?" pursued the Illinois member.

"This is a matter of legislation before us," responded the veteran treasury secretary. "Prohibition is a very controversial subject and I don't see any place now to express personal views."

Mellon testified on the Williamson bill to carry out the phase of the Hoover prohibition enforcement reorganization program to transfer the prohibition bureau to the justice department.

He was accompanied to the committee room by James M. Doran, commissioner of prohibition, who a current report says expects to retire from government service as soon as the transfer is effected. Seymour Lowman, the assistant treasury secretary, specifically charged with dry law enforcement, also was at the hearing.

Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, asked Mellon why he had been unable to obtain data from the treasury on the amount of industrial alcohol used. The secretary said if members of congress had any reason for obtaining the information it would be given to them.

Schafer then asked if it were not a fact that when prohibition agents became involved in a case reports on the incident were sent to the bureau for "covering up."

"I know nothing of anything like that," Mellon said. "If such a condition exists it has never been brought to my attention."

Doran then took the stand and recommended the transfer. He said he thought enforcement would be made more effective by the justice department as it would make detection and prosecution more efficient.

Oil for Love

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(Copyright).

ENJY kicked aside the bear skin before the hall fire.

"Now let's talk business—with the ark on," he said.

"What business?" asked Uncle Benjamin.

"Making my fortune."

"Why not marry it?"

"Against my fine scruples. I know Trent has a hundred thousand and a father—let us hope in heaven. She has also a swarm of fortune hunters pestering her constantly. I won't join them. Without vanity I'm up to average, but I'll never set any financial rivers afire unless I first set a spring branch—"

"I see!" from Uncle Benjamin. "You've been readin' grandpap's old diary—all about that burning spring he found in the mountains when he crossed 'em comin' from Virginia. Isn't it enough that he bought that spring and we've had to pay taxes on it ever since? Maybe there is some little oil around about it, but not enough to go risking good money for. Put the whole thing out of your mind, boy! I tell you I won't let you have a cent for such wildcattin'."

"But you will!" from Benjy obstinately. "You want Trent in the family—so do I—badly. But I don't want her despising me as a leech, willin' to live on her money instead of working for my own. Listen! I'm all that's left you, the last of the Benmores. You've got that fifty thousand in pickle for me, when you die. Let me have it—now!"

Uncle Benjamin sighed a huge sigh, sat up, held out a hand of acquiescence, saying: "Boy—if you will, take the money, with my blessin'."

Benjy went—waiting only to pack and bid Trent a gay good-by. He did not explain, further than, "I'll show you rather than tell you—some day." The hurt of his going made her all but hate him a full week—then the ache, ever-thickening, intervened, and in its agitation her hurt was somewhat salved. Indeed, she was busier than ever—went to the city for two months of opera and the playhouses, then to several and sundry winter resorts, but finding their gaseties waning, not to say frazzled, came home—to the relief of Uncle Benjamin. He had been "cussin' mad" with his nephew throughout her absence, but the most lucid statements of the fact had elicited no response from the absent one. So when Trent asked him straightout for news, he could only temporize—look wise and hint darkly that anything might happen, might any day now. And to that, she countered finely with:

"Why, yes! You may get wedding cards. I found the nicest man down in Florida—handsome, and rich, and everything—with a yacht and a private car—and all the women, married, single and semi-attached, quite, quite mad about him. He says he is coming here around Easter. If he does, will you promise to be very nice to him?"

"No," snapped Uncle Benjamin; "I'd a heap rather shoot him. Trent, I promise me to wait a while—say six months longer—if something hasn't break by then, I shall know what to think."

She turned away her head—he saw her shoulders heave faintly—but in a minute she faced him laughing a hard laugh. "He shall have six weeks' longer grace," she said, "then I shall go and find out things for myself. And if I find a wife—well, I'll make her a fine present, and tell him all about the Florida man."

She kept her word when the six weeks had raced by. "I know where he went," she said coldly to Uncle Benjamin. "You must come with me to find out if he is still there—" Uncle Benjamin groaned aloud. He had no need of finding out, the very last of the insurance money had been withdrawn from the bank, and with only a word of explanation from Benjy, namely: "Options!"

The boy must be mad—clean daffy, thought the uncle. To throw away his two fortunes, and the dearest girl in the world.

But the elder man held his peace while they journeyed, first by train, then by motor car, at last by jolting, springless carts into the deep heart of the hills. And there, ragged, unkempt, ambushed in a fleece of beard they found Benjy, spare even to gauntness, with deep-set, burning eyes, and the look of listening for something that might never come.

He leaned on a long rifle, and had a telescope slung across his chest. The knoll he stood on was bare, and high, a sort of rounded crag lifted before the welter and riot of hills. All about him budding trees rioted in spring sunshine, but he seemed all dead lifeless, like a man in a dream.

Something waked him violently—a faint aliken rushing roar, all but drowning sharp human yells, staccato, mad in volume. Benjy staggered visibly—threw up his hands, steadied himself, then catching sight of the newcomers cried aloud: "Just in time. At last a gusher! And don't forget, Uncle Benjamin, we together have options on everything for ten miles around."

"You were willing to risk losing me for them," Trent said, holding her close in her hands.

"No—I fought for them to keep from losing you," Benjy said, folding her light in his arms.

Shows Broiling Of Frozen Steak

Also Demonstrates Advantages of Almost Waterless Boiling of Vegetables and Conservation of Meat by Roasting in Electric Oven.

A record crowd attended the last afternoon of Mrs. Dorothy M. Littlefield's home economics course at the Harder Electrical Company store this afternoon.

One of the most interesting things was the broiling of one of the new Swift package steaks. This steak had been frozen at a temperature of 40° below zero and was at a temperature of 10°above zero when put in the broiler—and hard as a rock. In spite of this, the broiling time was just about the same as for an unfrozen piece of steak and the ladies pronounced it as delicious a piece of meat as they ever tasted.

Mrs. Littlefield went to considerable length in explaining some of the advantages of electric cookery from a dietary point of view. She explained that vegetables can be boiled virtually without water, about one-half teacup of water only being used to boil a pot of potatoes. The result is that the vegetables retain their juices and vitamines and do not lose their shape. In roasting meats, the interesting fact was brought out that with combustion stoves, meat loses about 28% of its weight during the cooking due to evaporation.

In an electric oven, which is airtight, the loss is only 8%, which means two pounds saved on a ten pound roast.

As an opportunity for the ladies who have been unable to hear Mrs. Littlefield during the afternoon, there will be a special class this evening at 7:30.

A great deal of the credit for the success of these courses is due to the Harder Electrical Company and to Miss Plank, of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, who has contributed in a most efficient manner to the smoothness of the program.

Visitors Attracted to Nation's Rural Schools

It is nothing uncommon now for tourists traveling through the country to stop and pay a visit to a rural school on the roadside. Mostly such visits are made by persons actively interested in educational enterprises, but sometimes the calls are made purely for the novelty of the experience.

Often the teacher puts on a little impromptu entertainment, and where the visitors express a desire to make a donation it is accepted for the library fund. In that way some of the rural school libraries have been considerably augmented. Substantial gifts have followed from casual visits to the rural schools by pleasure travelers, either interested in school problems or wishing to relax for a time from a motor trip in the atmosphere of a country schoolroom. In either case the experience is enjoyed by the pupils as well as the chance visitors.

In one instance a tourist and his wife stopped at a remote rural school for a brief stay. Nothing was thought of the incident, but a few weeks later some needed equipment was delivered at the schoolhouse with the compliments of the visitors, who hailed from another state. What are known in Kentucky as one-room schoolhouses always excite the interest of visitors with a particular bent for observing educational methods and systems.

The rural schoolroom and the surroundings present a better appearance nowadays. Visitors are likely to drop in at any time, and the average rural school now endeavors to make a good impression when company comes, to look around and perhaps to note the progress of the pupils. Certainly visits are an incentive to keeping things neat and trim.—Will Kaltenbacker in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Verdict of No Cause of Action

A verdict of no cause for action was delivered by a jury in county court Tuesday afternoon in the case of Alfred B. Van Buren against John Van Derwiele. The plaintiff contended that his machine was struck as it was rounding a turn to the left, and the defendant stated that the plaintiff turned out from the traffic line into his car. S. G. Carpenter of Highland represented the plaintiff, and Andrew J. Cook of Kingston was attorney for the defendant.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—A new record for public utility financing is expected to be made this month. Bond issues of this classification last week amounted to more than $200,000,000 and additional issues totaling more than half this amount are due for public offering before January 31. Several railroads are seeking approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission for new bond issues and several of these probably will be added to the month's total.

New building and engineering work contracted for in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains from January 11 to January 17, amounted to $84,969,500, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp. Although less than the amount for the preceding week, it brought the total from the first of the month up to $203,650,800, a daily average of 23 per cent above the daily rate for December, 1929.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad is inquiring for 1,800 freight cars of various types, involving from 20,000 to 25,000 tons of steel, and costing nearly $5,000,000.

Y. M. C. A. Trims Hudson Team on Local "Y" Court

The Y. M. C. A. representatives avenged the recent defeat handed them at Hudson by the Boys' Club by trimming the same outfit 44-32, Tuesday night at the local "Y" basketball court.

One-sidedness marked the first half, during which the "Y" scored at will and had a 20-point lead at its end. The score was 29-9. Hudson came into its own during the third quarter and by a scoring barrage cut down the Kingston boys' lead.

Soon after the referee's whistle started the third quarter, the Hudson club had collected nine points. They caught the "Y" napping and never stopped until they had crept up within three points of tying their opponents. The score at the end of the third quarter was Y. M. C. A., 31; Hudson, 28.

The Boys' Club banked on another scoring spree in the last quarter, but the "Y" held its ground and prevented Hudson from snatching the lead. Kingston increased its advantage to 12 points, the game ending 44-32 in favor of the "Y".

Captain Chet Fox and "Hank" Krum of the Y. M. C. A. divided scoring honors, each having collected 13 markers during the game. Zayas of Hudson also registered 13 and was highest individual scorer of the Boys' Club.

Edwards Not Eligible.

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—Authorities at New York University have revealed that Phil Edwards, great negro middle distance runner, will not be eligible to compete for the Violets after January 31, and therefore will not defend his half mile crown at the intercollegiate indoor track and field championships here in March.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

William H. Dempsey, the well known gentleman of ring fortune, is sufficiently astute to realize that his value in any public circumstance is in no wise handicapped by the thought that perhaps, after all, the Old Man Mauler may be persuaded to have one more fling with the gloves.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding all this pleasant innuendo, the fact is that Dempsey has very little, if any more intention or desire to return to active combat than has successor, James J. Tunney.

These two put on their last big act in Chicago. Tunney may prefer to recollect that he said his farewell to the ring with the knockout of Tom Heeney but as a matter of fact, Gentleman Gene really gave a greater exhibition of prowess in his second fight with Dempsey than he did in using old Tom for a punching bag. Of course, there was the 14-count, the old bicycle in motion in that famous seventh round and all that sort of thing. Nevertheless Mr. Tunney, once upon his feet and in full command if his faculties gave a greater exhibition of skill and stamina in whipping Dempsey through the last three rounds than he did in any other battle of his career. He had to win the last three rounds decisively to keep the title and he did it, following the most unpleasant experience he had ever known inside the ropes.

Dempsey lost no prestige; rather he gained plenty in that climax to his great career. It would be little short of a travesty now for the old Mauler to attempt a come-back. He is no older than Babe Ruth, Bill Tilden and other stars whose legs still carry them about the main arenas but these performers have kept in shape with year-in-and-out competition Dempsey was passing the peak in the year he beat Tommy Gibbons and Luis Firpo—1923. He was not anywhere near his old fighting self when he lost his first fight with Tunney in 1926 and he had little more than the old punch and courage left the next year, when he beat Sharkey and put Tunney on the floor with his last big fusillade.

Dempsey still in all likelihood could outpunch any of the new crop of heavyweights but tough and fast young men like Sharkey, Griffiths and Schmeling would quickly wear down the one-time champion. No one knows this any better than Dempsey.

Dempsey does not take the forthcoming Sharkey-Scott seriously, so far as Scott is concerned. He dismisses the lanky Englishman as a contender by remarking:

"Right now it is Sharkey against Schmeling for the world crown. The winner of such a contest would be acclaimed throughout the world. He would be the undisputed champion."

Although Schmeling has been in the background for some months, awaiting his turn to figure in the final scramble for the heavyweight title, the clouting German's standing has been improved by the latest performances of men he soundly whipped.

Schmeling knocked out Johnny Risko, something that Griffiths could not accomplish, and the German trounced and battered Hans Pau-lino, who was good enough to beat Otto Von Porat the last time out.

It may or may not be significant that one night recently the New York Coliseum, with a 15,000 capacity, drew exactly $344 from 500 spectators at the same time that 10,000 fans gathered in Madison Square Garden for the preliminary bouts of the Metropolitan amateur boxing championships....

Working on a percentage, Tut Sandwina collected exactly $88.80 for participating in the main go while Andy Mitchell, a semi-finalist, received a $750 guaranty, more than double the actual receipts.

So far as can be recalled, Johnny Wilson, the former middleweight champion, established the record when he gathered only $11 for ten rounds at the old Harlem River Club.

Spinny's Anxious To Meet Roamers

According to Earl Terwilliger, leader of Spinny's Radio Five of Port Ewen, the quintet that has cleaned up some stellar basketball outfits this season, is very anxious to match its brand against the Roamers, who will invade Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, Saturday night.

Spinny's are all set to go says Terwilliger, who is confident that his charges will roll up an overwhelming score in their game with the Roamers. Many Port Ewen rooters are in accord with Terwilliger and it is believed that a record crowd of basketball fans from across the creek will be out to see their boys roll up a score that will completely swamp the Roamers.

Although the odds are seemingly against them, the gallant little Roamers will take the court against Spinny's displaying a courageous mood. They are out for the scalps of the Port Ewoners and will put up one of the hardest fights of the season.

Both teams' desire to win promises that the game will be a fast exhibition of good clean basketball. It is believed that the match will draw well, so preparations will be made to handle a record crowd.

Sunday School League Games

Senior Sunday School Basketball League games will be played tonight at the Y. M. C. A. as follows:

Congregationals vs. St. Paul quintet, 8:30.
St. John's vs. Presbyterians, 9:15.
Redeemers vs. Comforters, 10:00.

How Toe Hold Should Be Applied

Dick Shikat, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, demonstrates the correct way to apply the toehold from behind.

"Outside" Referee Plan of Navy Boxing Pastime

Naval academy boxers will try an innovation during the winter season in engaging in contests while the referee sits in a chair outside the ring.

The idea, according to Lieut. Com. Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics, is to supply cleaner boxing, especially in doing away with undue clinching. It is felt, he said, that a boxer is more apt to clinch when he knows that there is a third man ready to separate them. Under the "outside" plan, the referee will merely tell the boys to break.

Strike Webb, veteran boxing coach at the academy, regards the plan with abounding favor.

While the "outside" method will be a novelty to American boxing fans, it's old stuff to British followers of the sport. Not only at amateur bouts, but at professional ones as well, the referee squats on a chair beyond the ring's confines. He enters only to toll out the count when a knockdown occurs. He does not even enter the ring in case of a foul, simply awarding the fight to the foulee.

Junior Tennis Champ

William Jacobs of Baltimore city college, who was crowned the new national junior indoor tennis champion, as the result of his five-set victory, scored over John Richardson of Dartmouth, in the final round of the tournament, held at the Seventh regiment armory, New York. Both men uncorked a brand of tennis which stamps them as likely defenders of America's reputation on the courts.

Several Freak Baseball Marks Made During 1929

There were 23 players in the National league in 1929 who had zero batting averages. If this will offer solace to those who are bemoaning the increase of slugging.

These hitless players engaged in from a range of 1 to 18 games during the season, most of them being relief pitchers or recruits who came up in the dying days of the season.

There were many other freak records. Tony Kaufman, recently released by the Giants, probably boasting the most unusual. Tony, used by McGraw as a pinch hitter, came to bat 32 times and gleaned only a single hit, yet he scored 18 times. He had a meager batting average of .031.

Japs Making Strides

The progress of Japanese athletes in the last few years was illustrated in the recent track meet in Tokyo when the German stars won, 73 to 71½. The Germans took seven of the dual contests and the Japanese six. Dr. Otto Peltzer won two events, the 800 and 1,500 meter tests. The Japanese star, Kusamoto, won the 5,000 meter run in 15 minutes 30 seconds. Miki, another Japanese, captured the 110 meter hurdle race.

Britishers Coming

A team of British stars is coming over this winter to take part in the American national court tennis and racquets championships, both singles and doubles. The squad will be composed of four or six men and will include Bearline, the present English titleholder, and in all probability, Scott-Chad and Lees. The invaders will also compete in the tournament at Tuxedo, N. Y.

Dempsey Needs New Attraction.

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP). — Jack Dempsey today shopped around for a new attraction to fill his date at the Coliseum February 7. He was forced to cancel his ten-round match between Tony Canzoneri and Goldie Hess of Los Angeles due to injuries to Canzoneri in his recent bout with Jack Berg. Canzoneri has cuts over the eyes that will prevent him from boxing for a month.

Walcott Labors In the Garden

Former Barbados Demon, Who Met 'em In All Classes, Among Champions at Madison Square—Broke But Happy.

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—Madison Square Garden is a dim, cool place in the afternoon, full of shadows that blot the outlines of the battle ring and fuse the endless rows of empty seats into banks of dusk. Footsteps echo loudly, folks usually talk in whispers in the amphitheater that by night blazes with light and rocks to the roars of tight frenzied multitudes.

There are dim figures, too, in the corridors, mostly twisted old fellows with mops and pails of suds, washing floors for a meagre hourly wage. There are others dusting the walls, wiping the glasses in huge pictures that show the likenesses of the late Tex Rickard, John L. Sullivan, Dempsey, Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Jack Johnson, Joe Gans and hosts of almost forgotten warriors of the ring.

Only one of the charmen hums to himself, whistles occasionally, chuckles at his work. He's a short, chunky, happy negro with arms that stretch down to the knees. His shoes are almost without form, his trousers baggy. A gray checkered coat sweater, fitting his arms all right, stretches down to his knees in incongruous fashion. Diligently he wipes pictures and woodwork with a dirty cloth, a shapeless cap on the back of his bald hairless head, a grin on his wide, flat features.

Yet this happy, harmless negro, 58 years old and glad of the chance to work at menial tasks, is Joe Walcott, the Barbados Demon, perhaps the greatest fighter that ever lived. He once weighed 129 pounds for an epic battle with Kid Lavigne and as the welterweight champion of 35 years ago he never scaled over 142 pounds. But he knocked out great fighters in five classes—lightweight, welterweight, middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight. His most amazing victory was a seven round knockout of Joe Choynski, a crack heavyweight, when Walcott weighed 140.

Today he polishes the pictures of men who quailed before him decades ago, ring heroes now dead, whose shades might tremble a bit even now at the touch of Walcott's hands. He fought when a lifetime's earnings in the ring did not equal the purses paid ordinary fighters today for a single bout.

Furthermore, he doesn't think that the entire crop of fighters in the smaller classes today could have furnished George Lavigne, the Saginaw Kid, with an interesting night's work. Joe has a tremendous respect for Lavigne, as well as Tommy West, who had a disconcerting habit of biting chunks from his scalp in the bloody battles they fought decades ago.

"Ah liked to play with them little boys," Joe grinned as he swatted away at the woodwork. "Ah just punched away at their tummies till they'd begin to bend. Then first thing you know their jaws is down whey ther tummies was and it's easy."

Joe Walcott is well known in Kingston. Only a few months ago he was a familiar figure on local streets and at the armory bouts. Many times he was introduced from the National Guard ring by Announcer Samuel J. Ribb, who, to Joe's delight, always recalled the outstanding incidents in the Barbados Demon's career.

Walcott probably never would have seen Kingston were it not for the late Walk Miller, who conducted the boxers' camp at Eddyville. He brought the negro to his camp as a porter, but old Joe always managed to get into the gym every afternoon when the boxers trained. He never failed to amuse the many spectators who visited the place and always found an audience that was eager to listen to his story of the fight game in the days of yore.

After Miller's untimely death Walcott was out of a job and broke once more. For about a year he did odd jobs in the colored sections hereabouts. Finally he landed the job in Madison Square Garden, where he probably would rather be, in the shadow of the squared circle, than any place in the world.

WHAT, ANOTHER COMBACK?

By PAUL B. ZIMMERMAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Los Angeles (AP).—Charley Paddock is not yet ready to put away his spiked shoes for good.

At least the great sprinter says he isn't.

However, it is going to take more than the mere announcement of his intentions to compete in his 17th consecutive speed campaign to convince coast critics.

If Charley does get out on the cinders and train seriously the question then will be:

Will he be back to try his prowess in the 1932 Olympian in Los Angeles?

Last season when critics on every side predicted the exit of Paddock, he came back as a member of the Los Angeles relay team, and assisted in setting two records at Denver in the 440-yard and 880-yard relays, feature events of the national A. A. U. meet.

In 1926 the veteran was clocked no less than five times at 9.6 seconds for the century and was credited with an American record of 9.5 seconds.

Paddock is conditioning himself and hopes to take on the present crop of college champions who were in kindergarten when he began running at the Pasadena high school track in 1914.

Since that time he has competed on three Olympic teams, besides collecting unto himself the greater share of the dash records. Some of these still stand.

Granting that he makes the training grade, Paddock will be a member of the L. A. A. C. sprint relay teams, opening his campaign with the Southern Pacific relays at Long Beach, Cal., February 22. He may also enter a number of open races in dual meets with coast universities and colleges.

YALE AND PRINCETON QUINTETS CLASH TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—Either Yale or Princeton is due to move up one rung in the eastern intercollegiate basketball ladder tonight. These two, now tied with Cornell for last place in the league standing, meet at Princeton in the only game of the league schedule this week.

Each has won one game and lost two, the Elis breaking even in two games with Cornell and losing to Pennsylvania and Princeton dropping games to Columbia and Dartmouth after beating Cornell. The winner tonight goes into a tie for third place with Dartmouth. The Green team has one victory and one defeat on its record. The league leaders are Pennsylvania, which has won two games, and Columbia with one victory and no defeats.

SHIRES TO RECEIVE CONTRACT THIS WEEK

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP).—The case of organized baseball, the White Sox in particular, against Charles Arthur "The Great" Shires, nears conclusion today.

The punch-throwing White Sox first baseman, who already has acceded to Commissioner K. M. Landis' demand that he quit the professional ring and get into shape for baseball, conferred secretly with Donie Bush, new White Sox manager, yesterday and from the smiles that wreathed their faces it looked like both had come to an agreement.

Shires is expected to have his suspension, levied because of his fist fight with former Manager Russell "Lena" Blackburne last season, lifted and receive his 1930 contract this week.

Dutra One Stroke Ahead.

Agua Caliente, Lower California, Jan. 22 (AP).—Olin Dutra, the Santa Monica, Cal., professional, entered the third round of the Agua Caliente $25,000 golf tournament today as leader of the 58 remaining entrants. He was one stroke ahead of his two nearest competitors, Missouri's youthful threat, Horton Smith, and Charles Guest, Los Angeles.

High Cost of Carelessness

Carelessness on the part of letter writers gives much additional labor and expense to the government inasmuch as 200,000,000 letters are given "directory service" annually; 25,000,000 of this total are found to be undeliverable and eventually are sent to the dead letter office.

YOUNG DEWBERRY PROMISING CROP

Becoming Important Sort in East and Western Areas.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Young dewberry, named for B. M. Young, of Louisiana, who originated it more than 20 years ago, is now becoming an important sort in both the eastern and western parts of southern United States, according to George M. Darrow, of the United States Department of Agriculture, whose trials with this dewberry a few years ago showed it to be promising for the South.

The largest centers of production at present, he says, are in southern Alabama and southern California, though there are extensive plantings near Wilmington, N. C., and Houston, Texas. Evidence at hand indicates that it is hardy from Norfolk, Va., south and west to include eastern North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and the states west of Texas, including Arkansas and parts of Tennessee and Oklahoma. In California, Oregon, and Washington it is apparently adapted to a somewhat greater range of conditions than is the loganberry.

The Young dewberry is favored because of its resistance to anthracnose and leaf-spot diseases, the vigor and productiveness of the plants, and the high dessert quality of its fruit. Recent tests indicate that the fruit is well adapted to freezing for sale in the winter season, and its usefulness after freezing for preserves, pies, and the table suggests this outlet as one of the most important for this berry.

No planting stock is available from the department, Mr. Darrow says, but prospective growers will find the Young dewberry listed for sale by a number of southern nursery establishments.

Pruning Brambles Best Done During Winter

When a blackberry cane has borne fruit it dies. Therefore in trimming blackberries the first thing to do is to cut out all dead canes. Also any that appear to be diseased or infested with insects. The same is true with raspberries, except that the raspberry cane does not die after fruiting.

After cleaning up the briar patch by removing dead, diseased and insect-infested canes, thin out the healthy canes which are left, removing all but four or five of the best canes per bush. It is not advisable to head back the canes now unless they have extremely long growth.

Heading-back should be done in the summer after the new shoots, which have come up from the crown, are about 20 inches high. At that time pinch off two or three inches of the top of the new shoots. This will induce branching and the consequent formation of more fruiting wood for next year.

All trimming, except the pinching-back, should be done at this time of the year, or before growth begins in the spring. All trimmings should be burned immediately and the trimming followed by spraying the bushes with a solution of 6½ gallons of commercial liquid lime-sulphur or 20 pounds dry lime-sulphur to 50 gallons of water.

Horticultural Hints

Forest litter makes good fertilizer for farm crops as well as for trees.

* * *

Apple trees need an abundance of nitrogen early in the spring when the leaves are expanding.

* * *

The weather has not been nearly as favorable to the development of brown rot as it was last year.

* * *

Grapes are a sure crop, and by acquiring a little technical knowledge and taking a little interest, one can raise grapes.

* * *

There should be a good reason for every cut made on the young trees. It is particularly important that the annual pruning of the young trees just coming into bearing be moderate.

* * *

It has been shown that practically all varieties of apples and many varieties in particular, may be expected to fruit earlier when unpruned than when moderately or severely pruned.

* * *

The grower must constantly strive to keep his trees growing vigorously but not excessively. Changes in his type of pruning to meet this need must be made only after careful observation of the individual orchard.

* * *

The last week of January is the latest date to which the ordering of trees for an orchard, or seeds for a garden should be postponed. Grades, varieties, and amounts wanted are more easily obtained by those who order early.

* * *

Oil sprays are best applied to peach and apple trees during the dormant period. Peaches should not be treated with spraying oils after the buds have started to break, but apple trees may be sprayed as late as when the buds are showing green.

Italy to Send Planes in Nonstop N. Y. Hop

Rome.—The Italian government is preparing to send a fleet of ten military hydro-airplanes on a nonstop flight from Italy to New York next March.

Crews of the ten great Savoia-Marchetti ships have been undergoing an intensive training for the transatlantic trip and several of them have undertaken flights for 40 consecutive hours over Lakes Garda and Barcelano.

The air ministry, which is to direct the flight, has arranged for co-operation with the navy and scout ships and destroyers will be stationed along the route ready to assist in the event of an emergency. Italo Balbo, air minister, will command the flight in person.

The project will constitute the 1930 cruise of Italy's aerial navy. In 1928 the air forces carried out an extensive flight over the western Mediterranean sea and northern Africa. This year the ships flew over the eastern Mediterranean and Black sea.

France in 5th Place in Europe's Population

Paris.—The government has published statistics which show that France, in 1780 the largest nation in the western world, has fallen to fifth place in Europe as a result of its decreased birth rate. In 1780 France had 26,000,000 inhabitants; Russia, 25,000,000; Austria, 18,030,000; England, 12,000,000, and Prussia, 6,000,000. At present France has 40,000,000; Italy, 41,000,000; Japan, 60,000,000; Germany, 64,000,000; the British empire, 73,000,000; Russia, 115,000,000, and the United States, 118,000,000.

Wedding Cake Weighing 200 Pounds Has 360 Eggs

Buffalo, N. Y.—When Rose Buddank was married recently to Charles Farber, her father, a baker, decided he'd let some one else bake the wedding cake and thus enjoy the occasion the more. And its lucky for him he did. Walter Cichocki, hired to do the job, turned out a cake weighing more than 200 pounds. It required 32 pounds of sugar, 36 pounds of butter, 360 eggs, 36 pounds of frosting sugar, and 20 pounds of flour.

Plane Gets Radio Maps and Photos During Test

Berlin.—A successful attempt to radio photographs and maps to airplanes in flight has been accomplished by the Deutsche Luft Hansa. Equipped with a Telefunken receiving set, the plane picked out of the air a chart depicting weather conditions broadcast by a station on the ground.

TUBERCULIN TESTING OF CATTLE SHOWS PROGRESS

During the calendar year 1929 73,067 herds, made up of 959,219 cattle in New York state were tuberculin tested, revealing 45,001 tuberculous animals or 4.69%. During the calendar year 1928, 70,353 herds, representing 850,177 cattle, were tested, 6.61% reacting.

Campaign to Advance Scouting Off to Good Start

Nearly 150 Enthusiastic Workers Hear Address by Representative of National Council at Governor Clinton Tuesday Evening—To Raise $11,000 in Three Days.

The Boy Scout campaign for funds for the fifteen months' budget and to wipe out the small deficit, opened last night with a bang. Nearly one hundred and fifty enthusiastic workers gathered in the new dining room of the Governor Clinton Hotel.

An elaborate meal was served by the management at 7 o'clock. Several songs were enjoyed with Sam Scudder at the piano.

After the dinner Ashton Hart, general chairman of the campaign, outlined the plan of the campaign and also presented every worker with instructions which he said must be followed to bring the campaign to a successful conclusion.

Mr. Givlens, of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, was the speaker of the evening. He said:

"The plan of organization for Ulster county, the one being used throughout the United States, calls for a Court of Honor committee that will secure and train merit badge councilors, arrange for necessary boards of review and establish district Courts of Honor meetings on monthly schedule. These courts will be conducted in each of the villages of the county so that every Scout will be encouraged to advance in the program.

"A training committee will conduct regular courses in Scoutmastership as part of a five year training program.

"A committee will be organized by the council to survey each center of the county, arrange for establishing new troops and assist in strengthening existing troops.

A civic service committee will develop plans to encourage Scouts to render service to the churches, schools and communities and to be prepared to assist in meeting emergencies. Several other important committees will be organized as soon as possible, such as health and safety, camping, educational publicity, rural scouting, reading.

"A group of deputies will be trained, who will make monthly visits to each troop in the county. A committee of five men will be trained for each troop.

"The funds being raised at this time are to remove all indebtedness incurred by the council to date and to furnish an operating budget for the year ending January 1, 1931.

"The regular budget for the council for one year is less than $7,000, and of this only $250 is sent out of Ulster county.

"This money is not to pay for a certain number of visits of an executive, it is to enable the council and its committee, composed of several hundred men, to carry out a definite program. This group of citizens maintain an office and employ an executive to train and direct them in these activities. He is not a super-scoutmaster, he is a leader of men. This is not an experiment. The plan is working successfully in over 80 per cent of the entire territory of the United States and in many places for a period of nineteen years.

"In presenting this matter to the people you call on you are not begging or asking favors. You are extending a privilege and an opportunity for them to make a real investment. Scouting is not a charity. It is a volunteer educational movement, supplementing the home, the school and the church, that is recognized by nearly everyone as necessary in maintaining the security of our nation. We must develop character in our young people and train them for citizenship. Clergymen, judges, educators and parents all agree that the program of Scouting properly directed, does this."

After Mr. Givlens's address Mr. Hart took occasion to call upon various leaders and captains from the different communities of the county. The responses to this request indicated that a fine spirit of cooperation throughout the entire county is existing and everyone of them pledged fullest support.

Before the meeting was declared closed, the respective teams assembled in seperate units and the workers secured prospect cards from their captains, who previously had selected these cards.

The following communities were represented, covering the four districts of the county: Napanoch, Ellenville, New Paltz, Highland, Gardiner, Saugerties, Rosendale, Port Ewen, Kingston.

The workers' meeting tonight will be called at 9 o'clock for the purpose of reporting the results of today's work. These meetings will be held in the Governor Clinton for three consecutive nights, for the Kingston workers only. The county leaders will report to Boy Scout headquarters by 'phone at 9 o'clock each night.

TO INVESTIGATE INCREASE IN TELEPHONE RATES.

Albany, Jan. 22 (AP).—An immediate investigation of the increased rates announced by the New York Telephone Company is sought in a bill introduced today by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York.

The investigation would be conducted by a commission to consist of the attorney general, three senators, three assemblymen and two members named by the governor. They would be required to report back to the legislature by March 1.

"The Telephone Company has been squeezing its subscribers long enough," Mr. Cuvillier said on introducing the bill. "It is time the state looked into this rate question."

Industrial Home Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Industrial Home will be held at the Home on Monday afternoon, January 27, at 2:30 o'clock.

Increase Yields by Crop Rotation

Experiments at the Huntley Field Station Show Value of Alfalfa.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Results of crop rotation experiments extending over the last 18 years with irrigated crops in southern Montana, are reported by the United States Department of Agriculture in Technical Bulletin 144-T, "Irrigated Crop Rotations in Southern Montana," just issued by the department. The experiments were conducted at the Huntley field station, in southeastern Montana, to find out what rotations and methods would give the highest yields on the irrigated soils representative of the area.

Value of Alfalfa Shown.

The experiments demonstrated very clearly the value of alfalfa in the rotation and of the application of stable manure. Where one application of stable manure was made in a six-year rotation which included alfalfa, the yield of oats was 39 per cent greater, the yield of sugar beets was 43 per cent greater, and the yield of potatoes was 48 per cent greater than where stable manure was not added.

In respect to oats, the highest yields were produced in those rotations in which alfalfa was used, the next best yields were in those rotations in which stable manure was applied, and the lowest yields were on the plots cropped continuously.

Manure Effective.

As to sugar beets, in two-year and three-year rotations stable manure was more effective than alfalfa in increasing yields. All of the treated rotations showed a marked tendency to increase in yield the longer these rotations were continued. Comparatively low yields resulted from plots continuously cropped, and not better averaged yields resulted from the two-year rotations as where beets follow wheat and oats.

An application of manure in two-year and three-year rotations is well justified, the experiments indicated. The incorporation of alfalfa in a well-planned rotation brought a return second only to that when manure was used. As a rule, it appeared to be the better practice to leave alfalfa for a period of at least three years. Adding manure to a six-year rotation which included three years of alfalfa, much more than paid for the cost of application.

Copies of the bulletin may be obtained free from the Office of Information, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as there is a supply available for free distribution.

Sanitation Regarded as Big Aid to Health

As a general rule the farmer should do all that he reasonably can to maintain the health of his herd through breeding, feeding, and sanitary measures, and apply the immunization treatment as a resource measure when danger of cholera threatens. Of course, it is realized that there are densely hog-populated sections of the country where hog cholera appears every year, which makes it necessary to apply the immunization treatment systematically each year.

Liming Garden Soil

Too few home gardeners use enough lime. Many gardens are not yielding up to their capacity because of soil acidity. Where lime is greatly needed the application of artificial fertilizers is not, as a rule, economical. The acidity should be corrected first in most cases. Lime also helps convert a clay soil into one of light and porous consistency. Vegetable crops differ widely in their soil requirements. Certain of them may be injured by lime.

Profitable Pork

Good management is always an important factor in reducing the cost of producing pork. This means using only well balanced rations, keeping the pigs healthy, and saving large litters. A very small amount of hay with a little milk or tankage as a supplement to the grain ration is very valuable, but the substitution of even the best quality of legume hay for a considerable portion of the grain does not lower the cost of the pork produced.

Uses for Combine

Probably the most interesting development in combine history of the last two or three years has been that it seems adapted to the harvesting of almost any crop. The University of Illinois has harvested corn with a combine; they have been used successfully in the rice fields of Louisiana, in flax fields of North Dakota and western Kansas; and growers of soy beans have almost reached the point where a combine is a standard piece of equipment with them.

Pullets for Layers

Pullets with small bodies rarely have a strong enough constitution to make a high egg record. Try to build a large body before egg production begins.

The growing mash may be diluted with cornmeal to hold back sexual maturity, and at the same time to bring on body flesh.

Early hatched birds may be held back by diluting the growing mash with 50 per cent cornmeal.

Wonders of Science

A scientist has been able to make a dog's mouth water by merely ringing a dinner bell. Ain't science grand? We have heard that the ringing of a telephone bell has brought a lump in a guy's throat.—Los Angeles Times.

Install Officers Of Mystic Court

Mrs. Nettie Rodman is Royal Matron and Irar Jungquist Royal Patron—Appropriate Ceremonies Held Tuesday Evening.

With ceremonial pomp the newly elected and appointive officers of Mystic Court, No. 62, Order of the Amaranth, were installed Tuesday evening in the lodge rooms in the Masonic Building, Broadway and Strand. Preceding the installation ceremonies a resume of the year was given by the retiring royal matron, Mrs. Bessie Freer, in which she thanked all who had aided in making the year such a success, both financially and socially. Mrs. Freer was the recipient of numerous gifts from the officers and members of the court and also from her many friends.

The installation ceremonies were in charge of Sir Knight Walter Brannigan, assistant grand lecturer of the Twenty-ninth district, assisted by Mrs. Freer, the retiring royal matron, as marshal, and Sir Knight William A. Upon assuming the royal matron's chair, Mrs. Rodman expressed her appreciation for the honor conferred upon her and pledged her best efforts to make the year 1930 a noteworthy one. She was presented with a number of gifts by her friends. Gifts were also presented to Mrs. Buddington, Mrs. Christian, Mrs. Kirchner, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Leverett.

The royal matron at the close of the installation ceremonies announced that a series of card parties would be held during the season, one to be given each month, and Mrs. Buddington was appointed chairman of the committee to have charge of the arrangements.

On April 15, the court will officially receive the district deputy grand royal matron, Mrs. Theresa R. Leavitt, and the assistant grand lecturer, Walter T. Brannigan. This official visit is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the members of Mystic Court.

At the close of the court a delicious buffet lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Market For Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Jan. 22 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets.)—The moderate supply of spinach unloaded on the local wholesale district this morning sold well in a steady market. Trading was moderately active. Bushel baskets from Texas changed hands at $1.75-$2 and from Virginia at $1.50-$1.75.

The undertone of the market on Florida, large sized celery was a trifle firmer. Medium stock held steady but small ruled dull and weaker. Crates of three and four dozen stalks jobbed out at $2.25-$3.25, six dozen brought from $2-$2.50 and eight dozen sold at $1.50-$2.

Early morning buying of old crop white potatoes was rather slow. Maine Green Mountain potatoes comprised most of the available heavy supply, and the best offerings in bulk peddled out at $5.25-$5.50 per 180 pounds. Imported new crop Bermuda No. 1, red variety, best potatoes wholesaled at $12-$12.50 per barrel.

Building Character

A Kansas City school bulletin sets forth that "good character is caught rather than taught." This is a catchy phrase and rings out, but it is only true in a degree. Good character is taught in most homes; and it is also "caught" there—by example.—Exchange.
